JUSTICE MOST INSISTENT THAT AN EXAMPLE BE MADE OF PRISONER.

SEEK BAIL FOR THAW

Meanwhile Attorneys Are in Montreal
Seeking to Have Bail Bonds
Granted Their Client.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Coaticook, Que., Sept. 6.—William Travers Jerome, arrested in Coaticook yesterday on a charge of gambling, was bitterly denounced by Justice of the Peace James McKee in his court room today. The gray-bearded magistrate was very indignant when Jerome's counsel announced that the New York lawyer could not be present today and asked an adjournment of the hearing of his gambling case. Is Indignant.

"I want to say," said McKee, banging the table with his fist, "that I would let the law go to the wall, but I can't here and play his card games before our children. This may be a suburb town, but we intend to enforce our laws. Our relations with the American bar are not such that justice must be meted out in this case."

Case Put Over.

The court then suggested that Jerome's bail be forfeited. "That would only hit our citizens who went on it," said Mr. Hanson, the prosecutor. Justice McKee then "allowed" that he would let the bail stand. He put over the case until September 11. There was a crowd of about sixty persons in the court room to listen to the magistrate's tirade. They stamped their feet and applauded vociferously.

The Crown Prosecutor.

Jacob Nicoll of Sherbrooke, crown prosecutor for this district, and as such the superior of Joint Prosecutor Hanson appeared strangely enough for the defense. In Sherbrooke he aided counsel for New York and their successful fight to get Thaw out of jail. Arriving here last night he counseled Jerome's arrest as an outrage.

Will Seek Bail.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 6.—An application for bail will be the next move by the lawyers for Harry K. Thaw who yesterday succeeded in securing Justice McKee to "allow" that he would let the bail stand. He put over the case until September 11. There was a crowd of about sixty persons in the court room to listen to the magistrate's tirade. They stamped their feet and applauded vociferously.

Are in Montreal.

The legal contingent for Montreal handling Thaw's case accompanied by "Gentleman" Roger Thompson, the chauffeur who drove the rescue car from Matleauan, returned on a special train this morning. While the Thaw lawyers are in Montreal, it is thought they will appear quietly in the court of king's bench either today or Monday and make their appeal for bail.

Local Liberal.

Rousseau, the local hotel keeper, and one of Jerome's intimates, said today that Thaw had told him in all seriousness that he, Thaw, would have liked to have gone on Jerome's bond and that he was ready to stand the bond should the bond at any time be forfeited.

Laying Tile.

Workmen at the Y. M. C. A. have finished laying about half of the white glazed tile for the swimming pool. The pool promises to be the best in the southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

Coaticook Quiet.

Harry K. Thaw's lawyers have thrown a wrench into the plans to deport him. William Travers Jerome, having motivated quietly away to Nortons Mills, Vt., after his arrest yesterday and release on $500 bail, on a charge of gambling, Coaticook resumed its normal state today and the Thaw case remained a quiet affair in the immigration detention pen over the Grand Trunk railway station.

Was Continued.

Jerome's preliminary hearing was set for 9 o'clock today before Magistrate McKee, but his counsel arranged to ask to have the hearing continued. Thaw may remain a week or a day. Not until September 15th the Thaw case will be brought to court. The full king's bench opinion side on the writ of habeas corpus obtained by his lawyers yesterday. It is optional with the immigration authorities to move him at once or keep him here until the last moment.

Much Mixed.

As the matter stands the case of the fugitive slayer is more startled up than at any time since his escape from Matleauan. Ordered deported for a writ of habeas corpus, a question whether this does not invalidate the finding. In any event Thaw will have his court hearing and the matter of his deportation thought yesterday morning to have been practically settled is now a complex case to make forecasts out of the question.

Crowd Excited.

The arrival of the writ here last evening on a special train was greeted by a cheering by the crowd around the railroad station. Thaw himself thought it was returnable at once, and had prepared to go to Montreal on a special train. For an hour he waited, then the special whirled away, but Thaw was not on it. It had only his victorious lawyers headed by J. N. Greensields and N. K. La Flamme. It was they who had obtained the writ and they who had rushed it here.

TOKIO UNEMPLOYED EVER ON INCREASE AND CITY CROWDED

Men With Excellent Qualifications
Vainly Seek for Work.—Japanese
"Sarah Bernhardt" Dead.

Tokio, Sept. 6.—Like many other cities the number of unemployed is afloat on the increase in Tokyo, where men gather from the country with high ambitions. Unfortunately, however, high places are few and talent apparently superabundant. Consequently even men with good qualifications are seeking employment vainly. Some of them come to the Free Lodging House at Honjo, Tokio, tired out; some even are on the brink of starvation.

The summer of the lodging house is taxed to its utmost capacity. The director of the house tells pitiful stories of his nightly lodgers. "Men in the prime of life," he says, "come here every day starving, having no money, and no family. They are the young men who come to me for help, the majority are from the country. They make their way to the city with high hopes, and write home exaggerated and inflated stories of their success. A few years later they go back to their homes on borrowed money and dressed up in royal style to impress their family and friends with their success, not realizing that when they return to the city their situation is worse than it was before, for they are then saddled with debts they incurred to create false impressions at home. These young men are generally hard workers or ambitious students, then they become cheap laborers or coolies, and finally end as loafers, sheltered in the poor house."

Japan's "Sarah Bernhardt" Dead.

Madame Kumechi Ichikawa, the Japanese actress, died recently at the age of seventy, after spending nearly half a century on the stage.

Life Japanese warriors, who are proud to die on the battlefield, Japanese actors and actresses hope to die on the stage. Kumechi was no exception and her prayer was answered. While performing one of her favorite plays, she suddenly fell and died. She collapsed on the stage and never recovered.

Madame Ichikawa was born in a samurai family, and commenced her theatrical training at the age of six. She soon proved herself an enchanting dancer. At twelve she had many pupils, some of their her seniors in age, studying Japanese dancing with her. But it was at the age of twenty-two that she made her first appearance on the stage as a professional actress. Her thorough training, coupled with her personal attractiveness, made her more and more popular until one evening Danjuro, the star actor, who had been greatly impressed by her genius and asked her to join his company.

Kumechi belonged to the old school, but her wonderful adaptability enabled her to enter his role successfully in "new" plays, including a number of Shakespearean tragedies. She was virtually the only actress of the old school, for at that time Japanese dramatic works were played by men. "New" actresses, however, are now being brought out, and Kumechi gave willing assistance to the training of young girls related by the Imperial Theatre of Tokio.

Social Customs Differ.

The Japanese Empire shows a wide range in social customs. Remote provinces observe usages and incultures in social life which are surprising, when they are related even to the Japanese themselves. An educational inspector of Tokio has just returned to the capital from the island of Okinawa, where he observed the customs of the islanders, especially in weddings and funerals.

While on the island, the inspector, R. Kawagoe by name, attended the funeral of a German. The coffin was covered with two suits of the dead man's clothing, and surrounded by a score of women of sorrowful face, who proceeded to utter a long monosyllabic howl of lamentation. The custom was complex and the inspector was not affected by it. He wept with the mourners, but later he found out that all this sorrow was put on; it was being enacted as a part of a prescribed funeral ceremony.

On Oshima the young people enjoy far freedom in the matter of courting than in central Japan. They are left to themselves to select their own mates, much after the fashion of the west. When a young suitor proposes to a girl of his choice, the girl declines two or three times as a matter of form, and in order that she may enjoy the period of courtship.

Girl Climbs Mount Fuji.

Mount Fuji, a dead volcanic mountain, nearly 15,000 feet high, famous around the world for its graceful contour, has been summited this summer by a Japanese girl seven years old, who made the trip unaided by her elders. Considering the youthfulness of the climber, this is a record. Another girl, who made the summer is over, for it all goes well with him. Saju Ota, eighty-nine years of age, will accomplish his one hundredth ascension. With the record of last summer his record is ninety-fourth trip to the summit.

From time immemorial Fuji, the highest mountain in Japan, has been considered a sacred place. About about forty years ago women were not allowed to make the ascent. Even now much religious sentiment is attached to the mountain, and group after group of pilgrims from all over the country visit the little shrines on the snow clad summit, murmuring in their ascent, "long long ago, when the mountain was first climbed, the Waseda University made a record ascent by reaching the summit in two hours and a half."

ASSASSIN MURDER HEAD OF JAPANESE POLITICAL BUREAU

Mortario Abe Struck Down by Assassants Believed to Have Been Students.—May Have Been Mistaken.

Tokio, Japan, Sept. 6.—Mortario Abe, director of the political bureau of the Japanese foreign office, was shot down by assassants, who are believed to have been students, lay in wait for him in front of his house on Thursday evening, while he was at the railway station to meet H. R. H. the minister to China, who had just been recalled from Pekin.

Upon his return Director Abe was attacked by two young men who ran out of an alley toward him. One of them seized him by the shoulders while the other plunged a short sword into his abdomen twice. The assassants escaped in the darkness without their identity being known. It was not thought at first that the director's wounds would prove fatal for they were promptly dressed after some passerby had carried him to his home and called the surgeon. Excessive bleeding followed the operation of the foreign office officials in reports of the massacre and the insults to the Japanese flag at Nanking and for drastic action against China, led to the recent clamor against America.

The motive in the assassination of Director Abe may have originated in resentment of the policy of the foreign office in either or both of these matters. The foreign office officials in both cases have steadily urged and adhered to a policy of calmness.

The student element at whose door the assassination is laid, had been increasing in number in politics. Recently three students, tried to kill Baron Makino, minister of foreign relations and submit to him a solution of the California land question. An international press has been attacking the foreign office officials in California and Chinese policies.

Another theory is that Director Abe was mistaken by his assassants for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the Chinese revolutionary leader whom he greatly resembled. It was reported a month ago, soon after Dr. Sun Yat Sen's flight from China and arrival in Japan that a band of 100 assassants had been sent by the Chinese government to kill the Chinese General and other Chinese revolutionary fugitives.

John Schwartz Rushed from Beloit to Rockford to Answer Charge of Wife Desertion.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Beloit, Sept. 6.—John Schwartz, a clammer, charged with having deserted his wife and two children, leaving them in destitute circumstances at Rockford some time ago, was arrested here this morning and rushed across the state line to Rockford, where he was turned over to the sheriff at Rockford.

FIFTIETH BIRTHDAY OF SIGNOR MASCAGNI

Famous Composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana" Receives Congratulations.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rome, Sept. 6.—Signor Mascagni, the brilliant composer of the opera "Cavalleria Rusticana" is being showered with congratulations in anticipation of his fiftieth birthday anniversary. The state will make a festival tomorrow since Mascagni first saw the light of day in the city of Leghorn. His father was a baker, sturdy and practical. It was his wish that Pietro should study law.

It is recorded that the baker, having become reconciled to Pietro's plan of musical cultivation, presented his talented son with a piano. But the baker's son, who was already the rudiments of his profession before the new piano was allowed in the house. As early as 1881, when only 18 years old, Mascagni composed an opera, "Ave Maria" and "Pater Noster," which won for him the first prize at the Milan exhibition.

A year later Mascagni composed a cantata, "Ave Maria," which attracted widespread attention. Then he married and patron died, financial difficulties threatened to end his musical career, but one of his compositions won for him a scholarship of Count Floriano de Lardaro. To the Count's "Cavalleria Rusticana" was subsequently dedicated. His new patron sent Mascagni to the Milan conservatory. In 1886 Mascagni settled at Bergamo, and began work on his opera destined to make him famous.

The completed work was entered in the competition instituted by Sonzogno at Milan as "Cavalleria Rusticana," a one-act musical melodrama. It languished untouched for eighteen months, receiving the first public hearing May 17, 1890. Its success was immediate, and in a day Mascagni became famous.

ADJOURN HYDE TRIAL
UNTIL NEXT NOVEMBER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 6.—When the case of Dr. B. Clark Hyde is called in the criminal court here Monday the prosecuting attorney will ask that the trial be delayed until December in order that he may have more time to prepare his evidence. He expected that the defense will agree to the postponement.

This will be the fourth trial of the famous case. Dr. Hyde is held for the alleged murder of his wife's uncle, Col. Thomas H. Swope, a millionaire philanthropist of this city. The motive alleged for the crime was a desire that his wife might inherit a part of his uncle's fortune. Col. Swope died on October 2, 1909. Dr. Hyde was tried in the May following, convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for life. The higher court remanded the case for a new trial. The second trial ended abruptly when one of the jurors escaped from the marshals. The third trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury.

DEFENDS BULGARIA FROM ALLEGATIONS OF WAR BRUTALITY

Prof. Constantine Stephanov Writes
Letter to Friends in New York.
—Claims Conspiracy of Allies.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Sept. 6.—Constantine Stephanov, professor of English literature in the University of Sofia, Bulgaria, has written a letter to friends in New York in which he defends Bulgaria from the allegations freely made against her that she was the aggressor in the latest Balkan war and that Bulgarian troops have committed a series of atrocities in south-eastern Europe.

The letter is dated Sofia, where Professor Stephanov resided and was written in August, shortly after the conclusion of peace at Bucharest. The writer begins by describing the isolation in which Bulgaria had found herself for several weeks past. He mentions the fact that the Greek and Montenegrin conspired to make it practically impossible for Bulgaria to communicate with the outside world during the first months of the Balkan war. He then goes on to state that the Allies had endeavored to circulate abroad a number of misleading and even mendacious statements concerning the progress of the war, all reflecting on Bulgaria. He then outlines the secret treaty concluded last May between Turkey and Greece, by which Greece guaranteed Turkey armed assistance for the reconquest of Adrianople.

Professor Stephanov writes as follows: "The charge that Bulgaria was the aggressor in this war, in which her former allies are arrayed against her, is unjust and untrue. Bulgaria did her utmost to persuade Serbia to fulfill the stipulations of the Serbo-Bulgarian treaty for the protection of Macedonia, but without success. It was for the freedom of the Balkans that Bulgaria engaged in the Balkan war. With her army still at Thessalonika and Gallipoli it was unthinkable that Bulgaria should declare war upon the Allies."

"The Bulgarians have been the victims of a series of cruel attacks, meanwhile, upon the Bulgarian population of Macedonia. Thousands were imprisoned, maltreated, and many even suffered death. Other thousands were expelled to Bulgaria. Then followed the Greek riots at Serres, Angara, Negrita, etc., in which many Bulgarian soldiers were killed from ambush and many civilians were murdered. Bulgaria did her utmost to persuade Serbia to fulfill the stipulations of the Serbo-Bulgarian treaty, but without success. It was for the freedom of the Balkans that Bulgaria engaged in the Balkan war. With her army still at Thessalonika and Gallipoli it was unthinkable that Bulgaria should declare war upon the Allies."

ARKANSAS GOVERNOR HELPING TO PROVIDE FOR CITY HOMELESS

Governor George W. Hayes Giving Personal Direction to Care of Hot Springs People.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 6.—Under personal direction of Governor George W. Hayes, the task of providing for those made homeless by the fire which last night destroyed property valued at millions of dollars in the eastern section of Hot Springs began at early daylight today. Several hundred volunteer firemen were working to dampen the ruins in fear the smouldering embers might be fanned into flames again should a wind arise. Had not been determined early today whether the matter should be called to assist in relief measures. Under orders of Mayor McClendon all saloons are closed and so far there has been no disorder. Two hundred and fifty citizens sworn in as a special police force at a meeting held last night while the fire was at its height, continued to patrol the fire swept area this morning. Damage to the city is estimated at $1,000,000. An estimated loss of six million dollars, the people of the community will not be possibly until late today. Stunned by the extent of the damage wrought by last night's fire which swept more than fifty city blocks here, the city is now in a state of emergency. Did you ever notice that some people are never sick—always full of life, always on the job? That others are always complaining of backache, headache, indigestion, nervousness, or something else? Why this difference? It is a matter of vitality. The man whose vital energies are always at the top notch is always in good health. He does a good day's work and feels fine. The illis of life bother him little because he has vital energy to resist disease of every kind.
Now that autumn days are here, and changing weather conditions taxes your vitality, it is necessary that you keep yourself in the best of physical condition. My system of mechanical treatments, electric light baths, and massage afford you the best means of keeping yourself in the pink of condition.

WISCONSIN IS RULED BY NATIVES OF STATE

ELLIS B. USHER SHOWS THAT FOREIGN OFFICERS ARE IN THE MINORITY.

PURITANICAL IN POLICY

Much of Legislation Reversion to Narrowest and Most Middle-some Notions of Fore-bears.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)
Milwaukee, Sept. 6.—The political characteristics of Wisconsin are just now, a matter of more or less nation-ism with comment and it is, therefore, of some interest especially in the face of the repeated assertion that Wis-consin is "a German state," to see what manner of men are governing Wisconsin. I have taken an "up-to-date" survey of the field, and here are some of the facts. The only "foreigner" in congress from Wisconsin, is Sena-tor Isaac Stephenson, who was born under the British flag, in New Bruns-wick. Senator La Follette and nine of the eleven members of the house, are natives of this state. Not one of the natives is old enough to remem-ber the Civil War from personal knowledge. Senator La Follette was only 10 years old when the war was closed, and Thomas P. Koop, of the Ninth District was born 14 years af-ter that war closed. The war had been over a year when Governor Mc-govern was born. The secretary of state was born in 1869, and the attor-ney general in 1878. The lieutenant-governor was born in Denmark, in 1861. The treasurer in Denmark, in 1854, and came to America in 1874. The chief superintendent is the only officer who was born in another state.

Of the seven justices of the su-preme court, four, a majority, were born in Wisconsin. Justices Wingard and Marshall were born in New York and New Hampshire, respectively, and Justice Vinje was born in Norway, in 1857, and came to this country in 1880. Assemblyman I. N. Stewart of Ap-pleton, a New Yorker, and Luke Scan-lon of Milwaukee, born in Illinois, are the only two men in elective of-fices, who served in the Civil War. The senate of 27 of the 33 members are natives of the state. The only foreign born senator is the social democrat, Gabriel Zophy, who was born in Switzerland, in 1869, and came to America in 1874.

In the assembly, 64 are natives o- Wisconsin and 15 of other states o- the Union. Of the foreign born, Ger-many leads, with 9, 3 of them youn-g men who came to this country af-ter 1880. Norway 3, Denmark 3, Swe-de, 1, England 3, Canada 2, Ireland 1, Poland 1, and Bohemia 1.
A considerable majority of all the names in the list referred to, origi-nated under the British flag, at some-where or remote period.
It is plain to the candid inquirer that Wisconsin men govern Wiscon-sin, now and the more closely they look at the men, is amazed to find the more carefully their work o- legislation is studied, the plainer it will be that the impulse is not Ger-man, and that much of the legislation is a reversion to the narrowest, an-cest, middle-some notions of Wiscon-sin's Puritan forbears. Prohibition and woman's suffrage have been up in Wisconsin, since the days of the territory. Nothing in the proposals of the early know-nothing days was much more illiberal than the recent restrictions upon foreigners. There is mighty little evidence on the sur-face that this is "a German state" or that it is anywhere comparable in breadth and liberality to the broad-er minded Yankees, who made the constitution and let every foreign born resident who had declared in-tention to become a citizen, vote. If he had lived here a year, if he Germans want the credit for recent tendencies, such as I have alluded to they are welcome.

Illinois State Expenses.
Some of the newspapers that have given space to the incorrect state-ment of the California comptroller that Wisconsin's per capita tax is only $4.43, instead of $7.50, accord-ing to the recent appropriations of our legislature, may be interested to know that the subject is a little far-ther it should interest Wisconsin tax pay-ers to know that the great state of Illinois, containing the second city in America, and by the census of 1910 having 5,638,591 population while Wisconsin had about 1,000,000 less than half that number, puts us to shame in its appropriations. Illi-nois has just appropriated $35,870,000 for the next two years, and makes a per capita tax for that state of $32.7. Wisconsin, you will remember appropriated $36,268,030. Lest some Wisconsin expert should take issue with my figures, let me say that they are given by Professor John A. Fair-baird of the University of Illinois, and published over his name, in the Au-gust number of the American Politi-cal Science Review. Wisconsin is a manufacturing state and so is Illinois, but our manufactures are only a lit-tle over one-third as large as our neighbor's Wisconsin, therefore, puts more than 100% handicap on herself in this particular spot, and there are others.

One of my newspaper friends ac-cused me, the other day, of being pessimistic, and thought my letters were those of a common scold. Those who read them, if anybody does, can judge that. I have said before that I like my field because it is not crowded. Very few of the present day enthusiastic progressives meddle with facts, and I am going on the theory that there is still a minority, at least, and who don't want to be told about it through a megaphone. If I don't tell the truth I will admit my errors, frankly, if they are pointed out. It is a stupid person who would contend to be right in every par-ticular, even of extravagance, and not be right. Lowell said that no wise man would contend with a north wind. He would only button up his coat and say, "I am going to be in-clined to take issue with a bully, and there is something of that in our pro-gressive brethren, regardless of their particular brand. The spirit of the bully is always a cowardly one. A crowd at the back of such persons in-spires all their courage such as it is. Wisconsin has been bullied some time, now, and the enormous growth in the cost of government is the lar-gest net result.

Successful Wisconsin Men.
The papers were reported a gather-ing of Wisconsin men at Wauwatosa last Sunday, that goes a long way to contradict what I call pessimism. We hear the pessimists say that the door of opportunity is closed upon young men, now that the public dom-ain is pretty well occupied and that there is no longer a frontier. In the past in question were the presidents of three of the great, two of the most, the oldest in the country, the one from more or Ohio, and the Erie, and the other, one of the newer ones of the west, the "So." Then there were vice presidents and other officials, a dozen or more. All had been subordi-nate of President P. D. Underwood less than thirty years back on the "So." President Daniel Willard was then running a locomotive and Presi-dent Pennington was a conductor. But the point is that not a man of them, and they represent railroad property exceeding in value a bil-lion and a quarter dollars had anybody to boost him. They have fought their way to the front, by hard work and capacity, and they illustrate that there never were such opportunities for capable men in the past. I don't know but these three men probably get salaries that would combine into a figure exceeding $125,000.

A Bell Advertisement.
Last month I called attention to the plan of the Wisconsin Telephone Company of advertising the names of places to be reached from Milwaukee by long distance, for 15 cents. A new advertisement is now running that shows 101 places that Milwaukee can talk to for 20 cents, and they tell me that there are 100 that 20 cents will pay the toll to. This means that for 25 cents, or less, Milwaukee can talk to nearly 200 out of town points, and reversing it, all these points can talk to Milwaukee. There is no idea for every wide awake town in the state. Your city is a center, just as Milwau-see is. If your merchants and busi-ness men will utilize your Bell tele-phone facilities you can, for a very small outlay, will find that hun-dreds of neighboring people and ex-tend your trade, your personal influ-ence and that of your city, immen-sely. The wider the intercourse of the people, the more their mutual inter-ests will grow, and the greater will be the state's development. The pos-sibilities of the telephone have not been tested, yet, by hundreds of peo-ple. There are more than 240,000 on the line, now, in Wisconsin. That is one for almost every family of five.

The Stephenson Candidacy.
The suggestion made in this letter that Senator Stephenson is a candi-date for reelection proves to be pre-cisely well founded, as I suspected it could. Will McGovern, Morris Len-ox and Philipp all in the field. "Uncle Isaac" will win, easily. If Ayward is the democratic candidate and La Follette attempts to support him, as the McGovern people think he will, "Uncle Ike" will split the democratic vote and beat Ayward. The man who is in has a great ad-vantage, where there is no party an-athemy, and there is none left in Wis-consin. They will find that the re-sulting they have been giving "Uncle Ike," in their investigations, has been in his advantage and will make him votes. He deserved some pun-ishment, but people don't think it ought to have come from La Follette.

The Erie Now and Then.
(Advertisement.)
In May 1851 the Erie Railroad was completed to Dunkirk, on Lake Erie, the first road to cross New York with a single track. Before snow flies the Erie will have a double track all the way to Chicago, and a third track by way of the Erie Railroad Lake Line of steamers. It is this last track that crosses Wisconsin, directly, and the on-nage handled from Milwaukee and Manitowish, eastbound, this sea-son, is going to make the biggest showing the Erie ever made. This is because the Erie is taking on its new Wisconsin customers, and it is drawing a large amount of business from St. Paul, Minneapolis and the far northwest. The Erie is the Wis-consin line east, named in many po-sition, by former Wisconsin men.

Patents to Inventors.
Morsell & Caldwell, solicitors of patents, majestic building, Milwau-see, and Robinson building, Racine, report the following patents issued to Western inventors on September 2nd, 1913:
Walter Herzfeldt, Weyanwaga, Wis., protecting cover for funnels of war-essels; Hans Luthi, Kenosha, Wis., anti-rust closet-seat cover; Frank J. Huchette, Milwaukee, Wis., auto-matic vacuum-governor; Charles J. Pal-mer, Appleton, Wis., dental device; Robert A. Reynolds, Port Huron, Mich., self-adjusting grinding disk; Edward J. Selowalter, Racine, Wis., toy; Wm. M. Smith, Racine, Wis., vehicle top-hastening; Albert J. Sixel, and R. S. Conrad, Sheboygan, Wis., saw-guard; Wm. Slaughter, Marinette, Wis., storm-window for locomotive cabs; Edgar L. Symons, Milwaukee, Wis., crushing-machine; Henry J. Miegand, Milwaukee, Wis., resistance-rod; England J. Braker, Chicago, Ill., typewriter-attachment; Theo. L. Baugh, Detroit, Mich., differential driv-ing mechanism; Oscar Becking, West-buht, Minn., pipe-wrench; Wm. A. Sedal, Port Huron, Mich., water-strainer.

OBITUARY
Scott-Smith.
S. Smith of the town of Ia-Prarie, Wis., received word of the death of his father Scott Smith at Long Beach, California. The remains will be brought to Janesville for in-terment. Notice of the funeral later.

HERE'S FIRST STREET CAR IN PANAMA

The city of Panama has an electric street railway at last, and this is the first picture of a car on the narrow streets of that town. Panama feels quite important, now that the canal is about completed, and is trying to keep up with the times.

PLAN A BIG RALLY FOR RURAL SCHOOLS

Superintendent Antisdell and Prin-cipal Lowth Propose Meeting for Country School Teachers.

Superintendent O. D. Antisdell and Principal P. J. Lowth are planning for an inspirational and educational rally in the interests of the country schools and the rural teachers of Rock county, to be held the latter part of this month at Janesville. It is expected that every rural teacher in Rock county will be present. There will be four good speakers will be secured and some special music will also be furnished. Details will be announced later.

Training School Notes.
Miss Jacobson is arranging all of the school notes in a scrap book to make them easily available for refer-ence. This book will prove help-ful to those students who write up the history of the school each quar-ter.
The teachers and students of the school had a most enjoyable picnic up the river Thursday afternoon. Every student was present, and the picnic menu was a delightful part of the program. A good deal of the cooking of the food was done in the school kitchen and some of the vege-tables were taken from the school garden. The cooking was done by the girls themselves.
One of the 317 circular letter forms sent out on August 26, to certain high school graduates in Rock county, only 25 responses have been received. If more of the young women would re-ply the same would be much appre-ciated. It will take about one min-ute to fill out the blank, and it can be sent for two cents.

Seven fine bouquets are being furnished for the rooms by the stu-dents, who find the flowers in the training school garden. Each student planted flowers last spring.
Vera Jiving of Illinois will enter the school soon and she plans to graduate this year.
Alice Wilster and Minnie Milbrandt, both training school graduates, were visitors at the school last Friday.

Nellie Staley, class of 1912 spent some time in Wednesday visiting the classes.
Miss Alice Milbrandt of Evans-ville and Miss Bernice Ward of Avon-ton, called at the school the past week.
The model of a country school house is now in Superintendent Antisdell's office, where it may be exam-ined. This model has been secured through the efforts of the training school, and it is hoped that it will do some good. It must be returned on Sept. 9. There are some helpful sug-gestions accompanying the exhibit. The training school also has on hand five sets of complete plans for one room rural school houses.

Alice Collier treated the students to a couple of fine selections on the piano at the Friday afternoon pro-gram.

Two new students entered the school this week and two more will enroll next week. It is hoped that the graduating class soon may be about the size of the class of 1912.

The school is preparing for a special declamatory contest to be given Thanksgiving. The contestants will be trained by a professional in voice culture and public speaking.
Various committees have been ap-pointed and monitors selected so that all the work of the school is now be-ing carried forward systematically.
The first program of the Philoma-thea society was presented in good form Friday afternoon.

The schedule for rural school vi-sitation is now about completed, the graduates of the school being located and several have begun work.

Miss Frances Gower of Russell, Kansas, cousin of two of the stu-dents, the Misses Gower, was present at the program Friday afternoon.
Miss Van Halbe of Avonlon called at the school one day recently.

The principal spent Saturday and Sunday in Dodge county visiting re-latives.

The school has recently secured a set of Appleton's New Practical Cy-clopaedia. This is a very usable set of books for young teachers.

Copper Sulphate to Destroy Bacilli.
A method involving the use of cop-per sulphate has been perfected in Surinam for destroying bacilli which injure tobacco plants through the twigs.

HIS NARROW ESCAPE

By MARY POYNTER.

"You certainly do look good to me this evening, Eleanor," said the young man with a sigh of satisfaction as he deposited his box of confectionery on the table and sank into a divan corner all with the same motion.

"Thank you," said the pretty girl with great sweetness. For an instant her eyes rested upon him medita-tively, and then she hurried her bomb.
"Albert," she said, "who was the girl with whom you were walking down Michigan avenue Saturday af-ternoon—the afternoon you telephoned that we couldn't go to the matinee after all, because you had to work?"
"Who—me?" said the young man in rather staccato tones, sitting up-right with great suddenness. An ex-pression of utmost surprise began to show on his face.

"Did you think I was referring to my grandfather or the president of Mexico?" she inquired, crushingly.
"Who," began the young man with great indignation, "told you such a ridiculous story? I don't want to re-flect on any of your friends, Eleanor, but there are unscrupulous persons who don't trouble to be sure of iden-tifications."
"I've known you two years," broke in the pretty girl, "and I'm tolerably sure of my own eyes, Albert!"
"Oh, then you saw me!" the young man murmured unthinkingly. He put up a protesting hand as she opened her lips. "Now, Eleanor!" he said, "don't be hasty! If you will stop to think, you'll remember that lives have been ruined on all sides of us just because people have jumped to con-clusions! You're too broadminded, I know, to do anything like that! Why, just think—"

"I suppose that's all true," admitted the pretty girl. "But incidentally, who was she, Albert?"
The young man regarded her with a beautiful expression of reproach. He sighed as he shook his head. "I can't tell you how disappointed I am,"

"Incidentally, Who Was She?"
he breathed in tones that hinted of a stricken heart. "Really, I can't. I thought that in you I had found the one girl who understood me, and whom I could trust. I did, Eleanor. And now, this!"
"I don't see how that's got anything to do with it," persisted the pretty girl. "You break an engagement with me in order to keep up with another girl and then try to make out that you are the injured person!"
"I'm not injured," the young man told her. "I'm just disillusioned. At your lack of trust, you know."

"I want to know who that girl was," said the pretty girl, decidedly, "and what you meant by putting me off to go with her! You needn't tell me, either, that she was the cousin of the head of the firm and he had asked you to escort her to the railroad sta-tion, nor that she was a friend of your sister who had just come to town and lost her way, or—"

"Hold on!" broke in the young man. "If you take away all the excuses, you know, there wouldn't be anything to say! I'm quite willing to tell you all about her, Eleanor, and how I hap-pened to be walking with her when I phoned you I was working—I'm will-ing, because my conscience is clear, and all that! By the way—what were you doing down town? You said over the phone that you were going to stay at home and practice!"
The pretty girl looked pink. "I?" she murmured. Why, I went by you in Bob's machine. He dropped in right after you phoned and invited me to go for a ride, with supper afterward. So I went!"
"I like that!" said the young man in a rising tide of indignation. "When you promised me that you wouldn't look at Bob, let alone go out with him! Deceiving me like that! You thought I'd never know and you see how late has revealed your duplicity! I'm astonished at you, Eleanor. Now, will you kindly explain what you meant by doing it?"
"There isn't anything to explain!" insisted the pretty girl, a bit waver-ingly. "I—"

"Very well!" said the young man, getting to his feet with great dignity. "I am going now—and when you are ready to explain what you meant by such conduct you can send for me! An engaged girl acting that way! Good night!"

"Gee!" murmured the young man a minute later as he hastened down the front steps. "That was a narrow es-cape!"—Chicago Daily News.

These Million Dollar "Beauties." "We gave 'em 20,000 bonus." And threw in Pitches Smith and Jones. For this here southpaw guy. So spoke the manager. Did we fall for that awful line of b.—? Nix! List to our reply: "But see our lovely new cravat. WE paid 300 beans for that!"

When Lord Awfulbrook, the deuced villain in that thrilling drama of city life, Luella, the lovely diamond, the villainess, a fat roll of near-money to buy off the child's nurse—when Lord Awfulbrook does that, he has little on the average big league manager. Stage money is being passed about a whole lot more in major league circles than it is on any dramatic stage. Often big league clubs buy ball players from the bash leagues. And then it is given out that "Pinky" White, the Logansport boy, is a $20,000 beauty. Whereupon everyone flocks to the ball park to see "Pinky" perform and at the same time increase the attendance. It always works fine. But occasionally a few tracks are left uncovered and we smell a suspicion. For instance, St. Louis recently lugged out they paid $7,000 for Edna Brown from Montgomery. Only $1,000 of this price was accounted for, however, and the remaining $6,000 seems somehow to have disappeared. There is no very fat opportunity of verifying these figures, however, as the books of most ball clubs are not exactly open to reporters. Occasionally good prices are paid of course. But a grain of salt is a good appetizer.

Johnny Griffith's showing against Charley White of Chicago has caused fight fans and managers all over the country to toss their bids in the air and voice a loud huzzah for the Akron boy wonder. At the end of the bout, though a no-decision affair, White had the shade but Griffith won the admiration and support of all who saw it. Griffith is comparatively a green kid. White is a seasoned vet, only a few steps removed from championship circles. Griffith, though really built a superb boxer, forced the fight throughout and as many observed, there would have been no fight had it not been for Johnny. It is generally agreed that Griffith needs experience. But the dove-eyed Griffith, the Johnny Griffith of a few years to come, will be a faster, speedier and much more dangerous fighter than Charley White. Johnny's lack of experience prevented him using his right to speak of and he used it no more than five or six times throughout the fight. His remarkable showing was made possible by a left mitt, the like of which has seldom been seen.

Joseph Pulitzer's Ambition.

One day while cruising off the Atlantic coast our talk had drifted from actors whose performances we had seen and heard to the plays of Shakespeare, and Mr. Pulitzer spoke of the beautiful scene between Brutus and his wife. He began to repeat it, and never have I heard a finer recitation. It was so full and rounded, so terse with proper emphasis. From that he gave both forum speeches. I grew more and more surprised. He would stop at the corner of the deck and while still holding my arm, he declaimed to the open sea.

"It was my desire once to be an orator, my great ambition. I used to practice these speeches by the hour." It was the only time in all my acquaintance with him that I found him in this mood. But I never shall forget it—his tall, gaunt figure on the swaying deck and the strength and melody that seemed so suddenly to have been born into his voice. It was a note that I cannot remember ever hearing again. —Joseph Barnes in Collier's Weekly.

"Vanity of the Artist."

In a certain town in the north of Scotland there was an old road sweeper rejoicing in the nickname of "Barman," who was reckoned somewhat of a wag in his way and was exceedingly tenacious of his rights and proud of his position.

It chanced that one day while in the performance of his duties he was injured by a passing vehicle. During the period of his enforced absence from his duties another man was appointed to sweep his portion of the streets.

In a few weeks, however, Barman was able to be out and about his duties again. Some days after he had resumed work a friend happened to meet him and ventured to ask how the substitute had performed his duties.

"Well," said Barman considerably, "for ordinary, straightfor't, doon-the-middle-o'-the-street work he was no sae bad, but for the ornamental touches round a lamppost he was nae guld at a'!" —Tit-Bits.

The Learner.

"You see, my man," I said, "this is a telephone, and you speak through here and listen through this, and if you hear what the man at the other end says you write it down, and if you don't you tell him to speak louder."

My pupil was a territorial sapper, "under instruction" in the Fortress Exchange office.

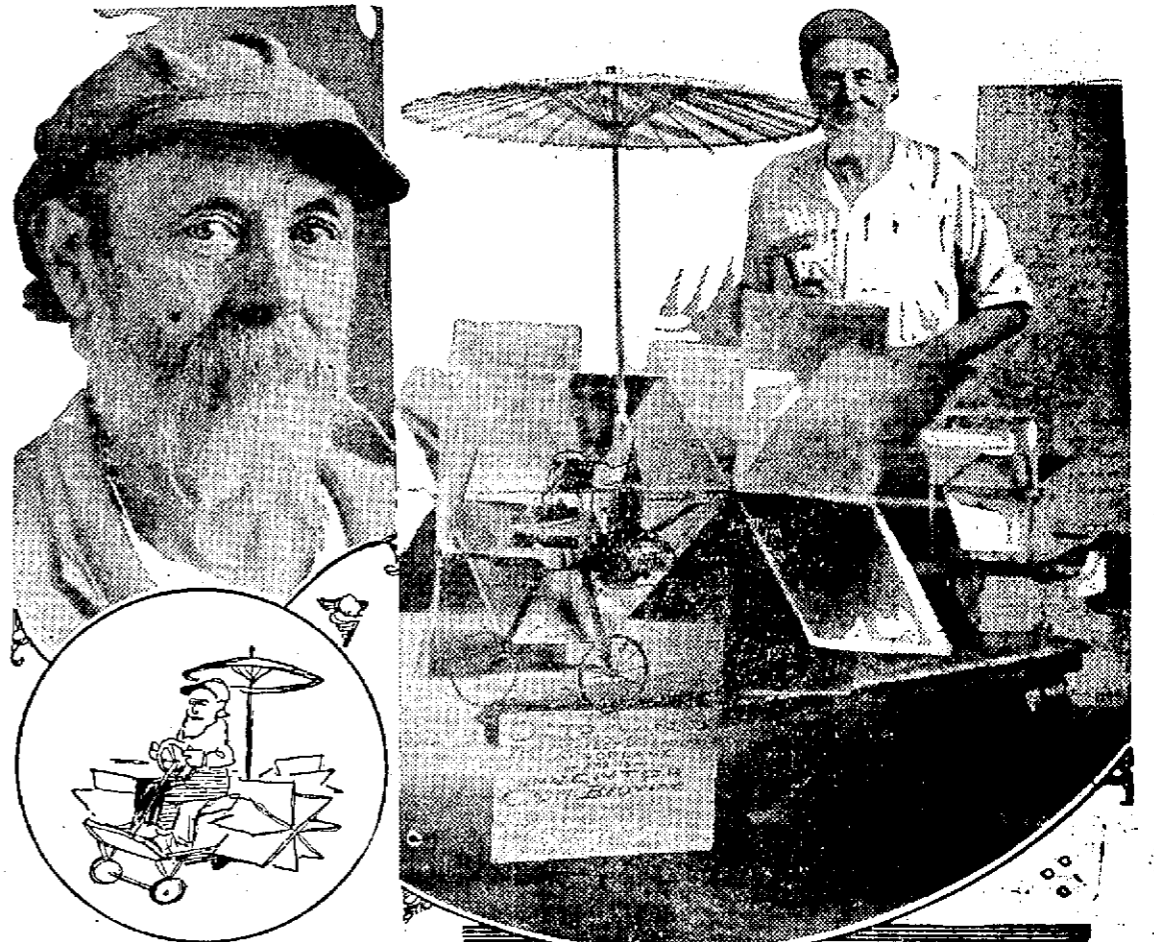

"Do you think you could manage to send a message?" I said after I had spent a good deal of my valuable time in explaining the parts of the rather tricky "twenty line switchboard."

"I think I could try, sir," said the man as he took up the receiver.

"What is your job in private life?" I asked.

"I am an operator in the National Telephone company, sir," he replied. "What message shall I send?" —Punch.

Carl Browne and his "octoplane."

Carl Browne, an odd old Californian, has invented the "octoplane," which he says has solved the problem of safe aerial travel. His machine is built on the principle of the monoplane, but instead of having one fixed plane at the forward end it has eight revolving ones, four on each side. He has interested a Congressman of California in the invention and it is said the congressman is back of it financially.

Last year he was the bright particular star on the Giant organization during the crucial series.

QUITS JUST BEFORE REACHING HIS GOAL

Harry Eliensky.

After struggling in the water 15 hours and 21 minutes in his attempt to cover the 21½ miles between the Battery and Sandy Hook in New York harbor, Harry Eliensky, a nineteen-year-old swimmer from New London, Conn., was obliged to quit within 300 yards of his goal, because the incoming tide was too strong, and because his attendants following him in a rowboat were so sea-sick that they could not help him to navigate any further. The young swimmer, who weighs 265 pounds, came nearer to accomplishing the oft-attempted feat than anyone else ever did.

DON'T LET BABY SUFFER WITH ECZEMA AND SKIN ERUPTIONS

Babies need a perfect skin-covering. Skin eruptions cause them not only intense suffering, but hinder their growth. DR. HOBSON'S ECZEMA OINTMENT can be relied on for relief and permanent cure of suffering babies whose skin eruptions have made their life miserable. "Our baby was afflicted with breaking out of the skin all over the face and scalp. Doctors and skin specialists failed to help. We tried Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment and were overjoyed to see baby completely cured. Before one box was used," writes Mrs. Strubler, Dubuque, Iowa. All druggists, or by mail, 50c.

and now that the "dog days" of August are past and the golden rod is in bloom, the first cool breezes of September have blown the green sunn of the old mill pond and all Nature is once more awake. The harvest season is here,—grains are garnered, the gardens are resplendent with red and golden offerings and the orchards hang heavy with luscious fruit.

Should it not then be harvest time with you? the coming season, the cooling breezes that should have cleared your brain of its August sluggishness, the desire to work, to hustle, to accomplish things,—do you feel it; is it with you?

With the tinkle of the breakfast bell, if you haven't had your morning plunge and aren't ready, with a school boy's appetite for hot muffins and all the other good things, then you aren't "feeling

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

It may be fine to be a millionaire.
I do not say I don't know.
It may be fine to never know a care.
I meet a new one every day or so.
It may be fine to sleep till nine or ten.
To wake each morn will nothing much to do.
To play until you go to bed again,
But I don't know. I work the whole day through.

It may be fine to own a motor car.
I cannot say. I street car when I ride.
I do not know that riches really are Just what men need to make them satisfied.

I don't say that I wouldn't happier be
If I had wealth or knew no daily care.
I merely say the world looks good to me.
Although of work I've had to do my share.

I do know that I'm mighty glad I'm here.
I do know that I get a lot of fun
Just plugging on each week and month and year.

With work to do in spite of all I've done.
A millionaire an easier row may hoe.
He may have joys that I have never known.

I cannot say because I do not know.
I've never had a million all my own.
—Detroit Free Press.

The philosophy expressed in this little poem breathes an air of contentment which is very refreshing in these times of discontent when the prevailing ambition is envy.

It is so much easier to be jealous of other people's possessions, than to accumulate for ourselves, that many of us spend a miserable existence, forgetful of the fact that the wealth of the country is being freely distributed every year, and that all of us share in the distribution.

When the automobile was introduced, only a few years ago we used to stand by the side of the road and envy the man who was able to own a car. Today they are so common that the man to be envied is the man who manages to get along without one.

During the past five years the American people have invested more than a billion dollars in this class of vehicles, and about the same amount for their upkeep, and the bulk of this money has been distributed over the land to an army of workmen.

It is safe to say that many of these workmen are better off than some of the buyers who furnished them employment by investing in a luxury which they could not afford.

What is true of the automobile industry is true of all other industries, for times have been good and capital has found ready employment by catering to our wants. The cost of living to many of us, is the size of our income, and it is fortunate for us that much of the nation's capital is in the hands of men who know how to take care of it.

If this money was in the hands of men like Harry Thaw, who was unable to live on an eighty thousand a year income, our railroads would soon be bankrupt, and our industries out of commission.

The people are coming to realize that Andrew Carnegie of mortgaged library fame, is not a philanthropist, but that the broadest and most intelligent charity consists in making men and women independent through employment.

This is what capital is doing for the American people, and this hue and cry about "favored classes" and
"special privileges" is the expiring will if a lot of disgruntled reformers who wouldn't know what to do with a thousand dollars, if it happened to come their way.

The largest ocean liner afloat came into the New York harbor, the other day, with a crew of men and women eleven hundred and eighty strong.
That represents the pay roll of a large factory and a population of a good sized town.

Down in the store rooms of the great ship was fifty thousand dollars' worth of provisions, representing invoice the stock of a dozen good-sized grocery stores. The vessel itself cost ten million dollars.

If the company should make you and I a present of the whole outfit,
we wouldn't know what to do with it,
and yet for a limited amount of money we may sail away across the seas and enjoy the investment, free from care or responsibility.

What is true of the great ocean liner is true of the railways, which spread over the country like a network of spiders' webs. They pick up us at our doorstep and land us at any desired destination. We share the comforts and enjoy the luxuries of gigantic investments, with but little if any appreciation.

The Mulhall investigation, which has occupied the attention of congress for the past two months, is like a sweet morsel to the minds of many people who seem possessed with the insane notion that capital is corrupt and that American manufacturers are highwaymen in disguise.

What do these manufacturers, who are just now under the ban, represent? They represent all of the great industries of the country. They are the men who have perfected American products and found a market for them, not only at home, but in all parts of the civilized world.

They are the great employers of American labor, and the money they distribute is shared directly or indirectly by the people in every nook and corner of the land.

What have they done to warrant the attack made upon them by the traitor Mulhall, so long a trusted employee? Nothing but to attempt to protect themselves against the prejudice and ignorance of state and national legislators, engaged in a work of destruction, under the guise of reform.

The "corrupt lobby," so thoroughly denounced at Washington and Madison, is a Sunday school compared to the men who have been making our laws, in recent years. They may not be vicious, but they are so completely absorbed in trying to reform and regulate everything in sight that they are a menace to the welfare of the country.

The tax budget of thirty-six million dollars, incubated at the last session in Wisconsin, is a fair sample of the high-handed method employed to keep the work barrel replenished.
The "devil-may-care" spirit in control, ignores the rights of capital and treats it as the under dog. "Go out and get the mon," is the watchword and so much of it is required to keep the wheels in motion that the man who escapes the burden has occasion to rejoice and say, "Blessed be nothing!"

In the larger cities the irresponsible men, who never pay a dollar tax, hold the balance of power, and are in control. This is why municipal governments are so corrupt, but our state and national laws are made by a broader constituency, and when the fact is considered that a majority of our voters are taxpayers, and a respectable minority patrons of savings banks and life insurance companies, it is difficult to understand the recklessness of our law-makers.

The man who owns his home, or has money laid away in a bank, is a capitalist. He belongs to the class of men who give stability to a country, and while he may never own a million, all his own, he can't afford to fight the man who does.
The development of this fair land is due to the fact that we have always had a class of men who were willing to invest, not only ability, but money, and patiently wait for results.
The men who opened up the great highways across the continent have been dead these many years, but we enjoy the fruits of their labor and sacrifice, and the land which they redeemed, blossoms today like a garden, for your benefit and mine.

It is well to be content with our lot and thank God that we live in a land where it is possible for every man to become a capitalist, if he will.

EXPOSURE

The Diary of the Bonehead.
Being a satirical and a thorough believer in the swat, I offered my children I cent a piece for all of the dead flies they brought me. That was early in the season and the summer does not last long, so I consider there will be a large sized pas-ter on my house and lot.

I bought my four children some of those cute little wire screen containers with a handle on the end with which to swat the flies.
I had to be away a week early in the fly campaign and when I returned I found a $80 imitation mahogany china cabinet flying in ruins.
A chival glass shattered, the glass front of the bookcase looking like a greenhouse just after a hen's egg hail storm and three vases and two jardiniere gone to return no more.

Child No. 1 brought me a fruit jar containing 2,487 flies, according to his own count, which I accepted as final, not being desirous of counting dead flies the remainder of my life.

Child No. 2 brought a two-quart pail full of flies, which he had counted over several times and found to total exactly 9,239.

Child No. 3 had 7,892 dead flies in an old mustard pot and Child No. 4 proudly exhibited 8,333 which he kept in an empty flour sack. He said he had hoped to fill the sack but I came home too soon.

It dawned upon me gradually that I had made me bounty too large and there seemed no technically under which I could escape.

Out in the shed, I found about fifty discarded pieces of sticky fly paper which had been picked clean of flies and the mystery of the marvelous swarming by my children was explained. I settled with them at 50 cents on the dollar.

"But, why the broken furniture?"
I asked the youngsters.
That was only "stage business," he replied, "to make you think that we had done some swatting."

It does not look to me as though any of us children will die in the poorhouse, although the old man may.

The Man Behind.

We have heard the singing praises
Of the man behind the gun.
How he's made our nation mighty
With an aim A No. 1.

We have heard in song and story
All the history that goes
With the job of lighting blazes
To the man behind the hose.
But there is another hero
Who is never lauded high.
Though he has a job of climbing
Ever upward toward the sky.
Both the other two we've mentioned
He has beaten by a rod;
In the building of the nation—
It's the man behind the hod.

FRANCE MAY JOIN IN PANAMA EXPO

M. Tirman.

American tariff legislation and the outlook for trade in the United States for French commercial and manufacturing interests will to a large extent determine the extent of the French government's participation in the forthcoming Panama-Pacific exposition, says M. Albert Tirman, chairman of the French government's commission delegated to investigate conditions surrounding the exposition and formally dedicate the site of the French pavilion. He is now in this country.

Celebrities Unfairly Treated.
In 1849 Poe wrote: "Everybody says that if I lecture again and put the tickets at 50 cents I will clear $100. I never was received with so much enthusiasm. I lectured at Norfolk and cleared enough to settle my bill at Madison house (Richmond) and $200 over." Set against this, ye who blush unduly at the memory of pirated editions, the $95,000 that Dickens cleared on his American tour.—Algernon Tas-sin, in the Bookman.

Imitation Diamonds.

The white sapphire, the white topaz and rock crystal are commonly sold as diamonds, but more often imitations are made of glass. To recognize these glass imitations, treatment with acids is also recommended, which removes the polish on the facets, while it does not affect the diamond, ruby, sapphire or emerald. However, an imitation made of glass yields to the hardness test, so that a chemical test is superfluous.

Floating Villages.

Not everyone knows that in the interior of Africa several floating villages have been constructed on the waters of a lake. They were discovered in 1889 by Stanley.

Good for the Teeth.
Carbonate of soda is good to use occasionaly as a tooth powder, as it prevents decay. A mixture of fine salt and weak vinegar water will cleanse yellow teeth, as will also a paste made of pulverized pumice stone and peroxide of hydrogen lightly rubbed on the teeth. To prevent decay between the teeth draw dental floss through them every day. This will save you suffering and reduce your dentist bills.

Red Diamonds Rare.

Among colored diamonds the rarest is a ruby red. Some years ago it was said that only one such diamond was known to exist, and it still retains its solitary grandeur.

Early Days of Cigarmaking.

At one time in the early history of this country cigarmaking was an important industry in Germany and large quantities of German made cigars came to the United States. The first separate tabulation of cigar imports was in 1804, and in that year 4,000,000 were brought into the United States, nearly all of them coming from the West Indies.

How Shall a Sinner Get Right With God?

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE
Superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"How can a man be just with God?" Job 9:2.

Centuries ago Job asked the question, "How can a man be just with God?" In all ages the moral sense of mankind has been raising the same question. Many answers have been given:

1. The heathen answered it in this way: "Make an offering to the gods sufficient to compensate for the wrong done." Hence they brought presents of fruit and flowers, gold and silver, and sometimes they even offered their own children as a sacrifice to the gods. They were always looking for some way of pleasing God without right living. The heathen method is still a favorite one even in Christian lands. Many a man serves the devil all his life, and then builds a library or endows a hospital to atone for his sins.

2. Others say that the way for a sinner to get right with God is to keep the commandments. Three things are to be said about this method:

(a) Keeping the law does not atone for past sins. If one were to obey God's law perfectly from this time on, that would not atone for the sins of the past.

(b) The law never was designed to save men from sin, but only to show them that they are sinners. When Mr. Moody's boys were young he said to one of them, "I am going down to the field, and when I return, if your face is clean, I will take you out for a ride." The little fellow ran to his mother at once and had his face washed and his clothes changed. Before his father returned however, his face and dress were soiled again. When his father arrived the boy claimed the promised ride, but his father said, "Ah, my boy, I promised you a ride on condition that your face and dress were clean, but they are not." "Oh, yes," said the boy. "They must be clean, for mamma put on a fresh dress and scrubbed my face with soap and water." As the boy insisted, the father took him in his arms, and carrying him into the house, held him up before the mirror, and let him look at himself. He used the mirror to show the boy that his face was not clean, but he did not use the mirror to wash his face, did he? No, he used water for that. Now the Decalogue is simply God's mirror to show man that he is a sinner, but there is no power in the law to save a man from sin. It requires grace to do that.

(c) No one ever kept the law of God perfectly except the Lord Jesus Christ, for "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." This method of getting right with God is an utter failure.

3. Paul's answer to the question is this: Justification through faith in Christ. "We believed on Christ Jesus that we might be justified by faith in Christ, and not by the works of the law; because by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." (Gal. 2:16).

Since man has broken away from God, by sin, it is evident that if any reconciliation is made, the overture must come from God, since man has nothing to offer.

When God told Abraham to take his only son Isaac, and offer him as a sacrifice on Mount Moriah, the aged patriarch obeyed instantly. He even arose "early in the morning," and set out on his sad journey. When they had reached the appointed place, Isaac said to his father, "Behold the fire and the wood; but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" And Abraham answered, "My son, God will provide himself the lamb for a burnt offering," and God did.

So in all the ages the moral sense of mankind has been searching the universe for some adequate atonement for sin. The best they could find did not satisfy their own sense of justice. The position of the heathen world without the Bible is this, "Lord, this is the best we can find. It is not suitable nor sufficient we know, but what can we do? Behold the wood and the fire, but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" Revelation answers, "God will provide himself the lamb for the offering," and he has, even the lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world. "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all."

This then is the scripture method of getting right with God—justification through faith in Jesus Christ.

Three things are to be remembered: By the death of Christ we are delivered from the guilt of sin.

By the life of Christ in us we are delivered from the power of sin.

By the coming of Christ we shall be delivered from the presence of sin.

The Theatre

"FISK O'HARA"

A great international yacht race furnishes the exciting setting for a tender love theme in Augustus Fiske's "In Old Dublin," which Fiske O'Hara and his excellent company will present at Myers Theatre, Sunday, September 7, evening only. The story revolves around a young marine architect, Neil Powers, whose great ambition has been to build a vessel that would show a clean pair of heels to the fast British yachts that were entered for the Queen's Cup race on Dublin Bay. Neil has found a patron in Martin Ferguson, a wealthy banker, whose daughter, Irene, has fallen in love with the young designer. Some members of the Dublin Castle set have been watching Neil, whose smaller yachts have been wonderfully successful and racht owned by the Lord Lieutenant. Thoroughly alarmed the demands of her husband that he cease all ideas of conquering and racing the vessel designed by Neil. He complies with her wishes and orders work stopped on it. Neil is crushed momentarily but Rose Stratten, through Parley, purchases the yacht from Ferguson and places the requisite funds at the disposal of Neil for the boat's completion. The race day arrives and the schemers again endeavor to put the Irish yacht out of the race by dragging the sailing master at the last minute. Neil, equal to the occasion, sails the boat himself, and wins not only the royal trophy, but also the fair hand of Rose Stratten.

Mr. O'Hara has a number of delightful songs, the music of which was written by Daniel A. Sullivan, and will also introduce some fine old Irish melodies by Thomas Moore and determines to keep Neil's boat out of the race, if possible. Martin Ferguson must be induced to withdraw his entry and to stop the building of it. In the banker's wife they find a ready instrument for their purpose. Mrs. Ferguson was a former's daughter when the banker married for her beauty. With the possession of wealth came the natural desire for social advancement and Mrs. Ferguson now aspires to be a member of Dublin Castle society. The schemers' denouement to Mrs. Ferguson how fatal to her chances would be the entry of her boat in the race against the favorite others. A feature of the performance will be the introduction of violin solos and instrumental duets by musicians of the company. An excellent company has been provided by Manager Pitou for the support of his star and among the players are Madge Tyrone, Gertrude Matland, Mary Quinn, Rose Watson, Lou Ripley, Emma Naylor, Elizabeth Page, J. P. Sullivan, Eugene Frazier, Albert West, Byron Russell, Jefferson Hall, P. J. Foy and Wilbur Lowman. There is a wealth of handsome scenery and costumes, as one may expect in a Pitou production.

SideLights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)
The A. B. Miller Carnival Company has come and gone, although did not see much of the show outside of two or three attractions, it seemed to a clean, up-to-date and at least some of the feature acts were of high class. Under the shade of a big tree on the bank of the river stood a big wagon which served as the office for Mr. Miller and his secretary. It was well furnished with writing desks, a safe and a roll top desk and it was here that all the business connected with the show was transacted. Here all the men were hired and paid off and all the bills connected with the show were paid.

Mr. Miller is a young man but twenty-seven years of age and has been in the business since he was eighteen. He was born in raised in Weston, Minn., which city he still calls his home. Mr. Miller owns all his own cars and big wagons, but more or less of the attractions are worked on a percentage basis.

I spent something like an hour in his office and during that time many bills came to the wagon and when they were properly O.K'd and receipted there were no questions asked, but their money landed them as easily as though they were buying tickets for the show and it is business methods like this that make shows popular and every one who does business with a show of this kind always has a good word for them.

The one act with the show that interested me most was the wild animal show of Harry G. Wilson whom I have known ever since he first started in the business. Harry's first venture was that of a concert ticket seller with James A. Bailey with the Barnum show. This was in the eighties and in those days young men who could run a typewriter and take short hand notes were not so easy to come by as they are now. Harry had written but a few letters for Merritt Young when he said to him, "If you had typewriter I could do this work much faster and easier. I know how to run one and for that matter can take notes on the road."

Merritt Young, unbeknown to Mr. Bailey bought a typewriter and started young Wilson to writing letters and it was only a short time until James A. Bailey's attention was attracted to young Wilson. He said, "Merritt I have many letters to write to your one and I want Mr. Wilson in my office."

Mr. Bailey's office was a tent about fifteen feet square and always located at the left of the entrance to the show. At that time Harry Wilson was getting a salary of $12 a week and a percentage on the concert tickets which he sold, which would amount to $5 or $6 a week more, and the idea of getting into Mr. Bailey's private office as his secretary at $12 a week did not altogether please him and he asked Mr. Bailey's permission when he was not busy to go in and sell concert tickets so that he could make a few extra dollars each week. This Mr. Bailey objected to, but he said, "Harry I will raise your salary to $15 a week and at the end of the season I will remember you."

So it went during the season and at the close Mr. Bailey handed Harry a $100 bill and said, "This is for a new suit of clothes and an overcoat."

Harry stayed with the show some three or four years and during this time he saved a little money and finally launched out with a small show with a carnival company and since that time has always been in the business. Four years ago after he had gotten together his present animal show he made a contract with the Buffalo Bill show for his animal act and also as manager of all the outside privileges, and stayed with the show until its failure in Denver something more than a month ago. But during this time Harry Wilson had made a good deal of money and while he lost some with the show, helping it in a financial way, hoping that it might finish the season out, yet he has plenty of this world's goods left.

Harry owns a small farm of forty acres in the suburbs of Philadelphia where he has made his home for many years. He has a fine modern home there, barns and animal houses for his show and everything that goes to make up a fine suburban home. An American road passes his property and twenty-five minutes takes him in to the center of Philadelphia.

After closing with the Buffalo Bill show Harry shipped his animals to Milwaukee where he joined the A. B. Miller Carnival company. The act of the lady with the lions is billed for 15 weeks this winter through the eastern vaudeville circuit. His lion act he expects to send to Havana, Cuba for the winter.

And now I want to tell you something about Robert Taylor who is probably the youngest as well as one of the best lion tamers in the country. Robert who will not be twenty-one until next November, is an Englishman by birth and has been in the suburbs of London. His father was an animal dealer of London for some years, but he died when Robert was but four years of age and Robert was adopted by a Russian animal dealer and trainer and at the age of seven he was an assistant to this man for several years. Later he came to this country with the Bostocks and then went to the Hagenbeck show and two years ago entered the employ of Harry Wilson and since that time he has been in some four or five wild and ferocious, forest-bred lions. Robert is one of the kind that can always be depended upon and thoroughly understands his business. Harry Wilson expects next season to put a show of his own on the road with about ten cars and add many new animal features to what he already has and will tour the country and for most part play one day stands. He is a thorough business man and as the saying goes is "always on the job," and that he will make a success of his new venture goes without saying.

A week ago last Wednesday when the Barnum show was in Rockford the Ringling and the Barnum company on their way to the Buckbee show camp. While the parade was out in the morning and few people around the show Mr. Buckbee got his de-livery teams all together and loaded them up with flowers and drove to the show grounds and decorated the big cook tent, which is all under one canvass, both for the officers and the workmen as well. The tables were covered in number and something like 250 feet long and in this tent more than 1,000 people were catered to three times a day. When the doors of the cook tent were opened for the noon day meal the surprise was a complete one for in place of the cook tent of old it was transformed into a veritable palm garden or a conservatory of beautiful flowers of all kinds. Although this was a new stunt that The Buckbee Floral Company surprised these Ringlings with yet as I know your could hear it never was mentioned in the Rockford papers. But the young reporters were possibly so busy watching the lady riders in lights that they overlooked this new feature in the cook tent.

Last week at the Detroit Fair one of the greatest features of the country was that of Madame Manette and her high school educated horses. The Madison and her husband traveled to get her act in private life their name is O. H. Harris. I have known them both for many years as they started in the business in the seventies and their first appearance was on the fair grounds in 1870. They have traveled in almost every civilized country in the world and in '89 they were one of the features with the Barnum show all over Europe. After their return to this country for some nine or ten years they have been a feature in the fair and trotting circuit which takes in all the large cities of the east.

They told me they were billed up until the fifteenth of November and would undoubtedly be out till about the holidays. They are at Libertyville, Illinois this week and then go on east. They travel in a private car which is sixty-eight feet long, has four state rooms, a dining car and a kitchen and the balance is used for the horses and the baggage in this car they spend all their time from spring to fall. Their home is in Menominee, Mich., a small town about twenty miles south of Kalamazoo, and it is in fact that they spend all their time when not on the road.

I said to Mrs. Harris, "I suppose you have a maid," and she says, "Yes, I have one and one that I can depend on. I do all my own work. You know I never have to be on the grounds till 2 o'clock or after and our car is always sidetracked as near the fair grounds as possible it takes me but a little time to get to my work. And what would I do all the forenoon if I want for my house-keeping?" Mr. Harris thinks I am a pretty good cook and he is the only one I have to please and I never was much of a hand to sit around and wait for the time to go to my work in the afternoon.

She invited me to stay and have dinner with them. "You know you could tell more about what kind of a cook I am," she said. But I was the guest of friends and had to leave and only too soon for the Madame is certainly interesting to talk to.

An act like theirs that will linger in the minds of the spectators for hours to come is the only kind to have, and if the secretaries of fairs and race meets would have as high class an attractions as this and keep out the cheap ones it is for certain be much to their credit.

The following letter by Quiet Jack Moore explains the terrible experience the Hagenbeck and Wallace show had in a storm on August 21st, at Bloomington, Ind.:

"The Hagenbeck show experienced the worst storm of the season. It came up about four o'clock in the afternoon, just before the big world act, and it looked pretty bad, so they hurried the show and got it over just as it started to rain and blow a little, and most of us thought the storm had blown over. After supper it got very dark, and we heard the thunder in the distance, so everyone got busy and got their trunks packed when it started to rain in torrents, and the wind began to blow until the circus lot looked like an ocean and the tents like ships. I stood out in the rain and watched it all, and although it was terrible, it was a beautiful sight just as a storm at sea is, with the sky so black and the white tents rocking in the wind with the rain pouring down in torrents and the lightning was just as if the heavens were split in two. I walked over to Doc, Christman, the boss canvasser, and he had just said, 'I don't think that I can hold the big top,' when the wind gathered her force and hit the big tent and down she went, centre pole and all, and there she lay like a broken salt ball. And one after the other the tents went down until nothing was left but the band tent. Cages were turned over in the menagerie and one of the lions got loose, but was caught before any damage was done. The roar of the frightened animals made me run for my life. The show folks were running in every direction, some to houses, others to wagons, and some, like myself, standing out in the open watching the storm and wondering what would be left of the show when the storm was over and if anyone was hurt. Just then we saw a man go under the big tent, and as he came out of the wagons that some of the guy ropes were tied to, the wind blowing the tent and moved the wagons so that when the man came from under the tent the wagon struck him and knocked him down and the wheel of the wagon pinned under his leg and there he lay, only about four or five of us there to try and move it off him, which was impossible. We got enough men to get it away from him, got him out, and discovered it was Billy Johnson, one of the musicians. He had gone under the tent to get his brass horn, and when we picked him up his leg was broken in two places. He was certainly the gamest man I ever saw in my life, as he must have been under that tent for twenty minutes and was conscious all the time and never once uttered a groan. When we picked him up he said: 'Well, boys, I guess I am done for.' They took him to the hospital and the doctor said it would be at least three months before he would be out. It was certainly a sad thing and we all hope it is not as bad as they now think.

Mrs. Ogden and her son were both hit on the head by a side pole, but were not seriously hurt. Doc Ogden was also hit on the chin, and quite a number of our folks were sick by poles as they were getting out from under the different tents. After the storm was over everyone looked like a lot of drowned rats. It was impossible to show that night, so everyone got busy and started to pack up. It was some job, as the wet tent was on top of all the props and riggings, and we thought that most everything would be bent or broken, but in that we were very pleasantly disappointed as very little of the rigging and props were broken, so we got it all packed up and went on our way to the next town by twelve o'clock. I hope I will never see a storm like that again."

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS
ALBERT PATSON TERNHUNE

BILLY CALDWELL

"The Sauganash" was his Indian title. He was better known to red and white men alike as "Capt. Billy Caldwell." He was half Pottawatomie, half white. His immediate nationality was even more mixed than his ancestry. On his mother's side he came of the bluest Pottawatomie Indian stock. His father was an Irish officer. He was brought up a Frenchman, received a captaincy from the British government, and was a civil official in the United States. First and last, however, by his own choice, he remained an Indian chief.

Caldwell was born in 1780 in Canada. As a child he felt under the wise, kindly influence of the Detroit Jesuits. From them he received an excellent education and became master of both the French and English languages in addition to his knowledge of many native Indian dialects. When only a lad he met the great Tecumseh and instantly enrolled himself as that Shawnee spellbinder's admirer and disciple. The two were dear friends until Tecumseh's death. But the Shawnee could never imbue Caldwell with his bitter hatred against the white men. Although Caldwell proclaimed himself a loyal Indian he could never wholly forget that he was half English. He fought for the British against the United States in the war of 1812. Rising rapidly in rank he became captain in Great Britain's "Indian department." Though he lived in the United States after the war was over, he never renounced his allegiance to the British crown. He held office under our government, but was president of his rank of captain in England's army. Apart from this captaincy, he was also a chief of the Ottawas and the Pottawatomies.

The Chicago massacre. Caldwell is said by some historians to have been fiercest of the Indian assassins at the "Chicago massacre" in 1832. Others say he refused to take part in the conflict. When the prisoners there who had escaped the hatchets and rifles of the attacking Indians were dragged to an open square for torture and death, Caldwell hurled himself between them and their bloodthirsty captors. By pleas, threats and cajolery he saved many of the helpless prisoners from the fate that usually overtook such unfortunate as fell into hostile Indian hands.

Henceforth, Caldwell was known as "the white man's friend." This fact made some of his Indian comrades hate him; and more than one plot was formed for his assassination. Yet, undisturbed by praise or hate, he continued to befriend the settlers and to administer wisely the affairs of his own people.

By 1820 Chicago had become a thriving settlement for what was then known as "the far west." And, leaving the wild life of his people, Caldwell went to Chicago to live as the white man did. This caused still further ill-feeling among the Pottawatomies and Ottawas. But the man's iron will dominated the situation. Even as he was half white and half Indian by birth, so he lived among the white townfolk and at the same time held his rank among the savages.

So readily did Caldwell take to the ways of his adopted people and so quickly did he demand the respect and trust of the western pioneers that in 1826 he was sworn in as a justice of peace. He sat in judgment on countless involved frontier cases where his shrewd common sense and ideas of right more than counterbalanced his partial ignorance of law.

The End of a Career. So many clashes between settlers and Indians did he avert that the government decided to reward him. Accordingly, in 1828, the Indian department built for him the first frame house ever erected in Chicago. It was situated near the corner of Chicago avenue and North State street. There Caldwell lived until 1836. Then he went back to the Indians of his own tribes and settled with them at Council Bluffs, Ia. In the meantime the government had presented him with a 1,240-acre tract of land on the north branch of the Chicago river. He sold this for a trifling sum before he turned his back on civilization.

After a 16-year sojourn with white men, the old Sauganash found rough Indian life less to his taste than he had hoped. Yet he stayed with his tribesmen at Council Bluffs until his death on Sept. 28, 1841.

Billy Caldwell, the Sauganash, had a less melodramatic career than did many other famous Indians. Yet he did more than most of them to help along the cause of progress and civilization in the far west. To him, in great measure, was due the usually peaceful relations between settlers and savages in the semi-lawless section where he was so feared and honored.

TOURING IN EUROPE

Special Provision Is Made There for the Comfort of the Automobilist.

WORK DONE BY ORGANIZATION

All Troubles and Annoyances Are Lifted From the Traveler, as Far as Possible—System Seems to Have Been Brought to Perfection.

Inquiries received by the British Automobile Association and Motor union, with its membership of 70,000, give a good idea of the plans of motorists in general, while the answers given show the advance that has been made through the efforts of this organization and others to lighten the burdens of the motorists and to free his tours from every inconvenience.

In the not very recent past troubles over licenses and custom house formalities formed a very serious drawback. A big bag of gold was requisite to make the necessary deposits on the different frontiers, and getting the money back was a troublesome business, as the official was personally liable if he made a mistake in refunding what had, perhaps, been paid at an office in another district.

That has now all been done away with. The Automobile association makes all the arrangements; it takes charge of the car at the English port, and the owner finds it waiting for him on the other side, ready to be driven away at once, all the necessary formalities having been complied with, with an interpreter ready to render any assistance which the inexperienced may require.

Indeed, the system has been carried so far that, for instance, if a man in London telephones that he wishes to start from such and such a hotel in Paris at any particular time officials will take charge of his car and chauffeur in England, and see that they are at the appointed spot at the time named. If the tourist is unacquainted with the language of the country to which he is going he can be provided with a skillful chauffeur-linguist; indeed, there is on the books at the present time one who is well versed in Arabic, if anyone desires a trip in the desert.

Despite climatic drawbacks, many are spending their vacation on English roads. They have only to send details of the district they wish to visit, the daily mileage they propose, what they think of spending, or any particular taste or hobby, and they are supplied with completely worked out route cards; not a dose of medicine out of a stock-bottle, but a properly proportioned potion, suitable to their particular complaint. They will have at their disposal telephones on all the main roads, by means of which they can order meals or sleeping accommodations, or summon assistance if in trouble. The hotels recommended are graded according to what they offer, and a staff of inspectors has been touring the country to see that guests are properly looked after. Apropos of the telephone boxes, a gentleman recently made use of one to report to the police a conversation he overheard, with the result that a gang of men believed to be connected with a number of burglaries in the neighborhood of Maidenhead were, after a long chase, caught and handed over to justice.

Auto Tourists Spend Money. Foreign motorists in Switzerland spent about $3,000,000 in 1912, an increase over 1911 of $750,000. The exact sum can only be approximately deduced, and the total is probably larger. The number of foreign cars entering the country in 1912 amounted to 8,766, and, according to the figures collected by the inquiry office at Berne, each car would contain on an average four persons, who stay in Switzerland 13 days each, spending a minimum of six dollars per day in the hotels and shops, and frequently more. The greater number of these motorists are English, American and French, the English being in the majority. These figures prove that in spite of the petty but vexatious regulations in some cantons motorists continue to come to Switzerland in ever increasing numbers.

Another Way to Prolong Life. The statement has been made that life would be prolonged if persons would acquire the habit of stooping by the hips, instead of bending the backbone.

Wonderful Drink Habit Treatment. The Neal Drink Habit Treatment has accomplished wonderful results in the prevention and treatment of drunkenness. It is modern, quick, safe, certain and removes the craving and necessity for drink in three days, without the use of hypodermic injections. All of you drinking men who cannot stop at once and never take another drink need the Neal Treatment. If your husbands and sons drink, it is your duty as wives and mothers to help them. Give them the Neal Treatment at one of the sixty Neal Institutes, or at home, and free them from the irresistible appetite for alcoholic liquors.

Drug Habit successfully treated. Write for booklet and get our proofs. Reference as to our reliability, any bank or business house in Milwaukee. The Neal Institute, 444 Cass Street, Milwaukee, Wis. Only one block north of New Insurance Building.

Skin on Boiled Milk. What causes the formation of the skin on the surface of boiled milk and of hot cocoa that is made with boiled milk? Doctor Porcher of Lyons, France, says that it is the result of the disintegrating of the lime and the casein, and the lime combines with carbonic acid from the air to form a thin film of carbonate of lime. This film supports the undissolved casein in the milk, as well as some coagulated albumen and fat—Tactical World.

Varied Causes of Suicide. Causes of suicide vary. In the Oriental patriotic and religious reasons present themselves. In the west the causes are of a more personal nature. There are many classes into which cases may be divided. For example, the lonely, the sick and incurable, the unemployed and financially embarrassed, victims of nervous diseases.

That Ground-Hog Prophecy. The ground-hog prophecy usually has a grain of truth in it. Six weeks after Candlemas is St. Matthias day. If the good saint comes and "finds ice he will break it, and if there is no ice he will make it."

Col. Hamilton. U. S. VOLUNTEER INFANTRY. Batiant Spanish-American Soldier Gives Praise to Per-u-na

Col. Arthur L. Hamilton, of the Seventh Ohio Volunteers, writes as follows:

"I have used Peruna myself and in my family for the last seven years. I have already written you about the good results I experienced with your remedy during the Spanish-American War."

"My command used your Peruna during our service in the Spanish-American War, and I will say this, that if the War Department records are consulted, it will be found that the casualties in my regiment were less than in any other regiment of the Army Corps while at Camps Alger, Meade and Bushnell. The total deaths in my regiment during the seven months' service, were seven out of a total number of 1400. I, of course, cannot help but think that Peruna certainly was a great benefit to my command."

WOMAN IS ARRESTED AS BLACKMAILER; $3,000 DEMANDED TO HUSH UP "SCANDAL"

Miss Lillian Huntington (top) and Mrs. Margaret A. Carter.

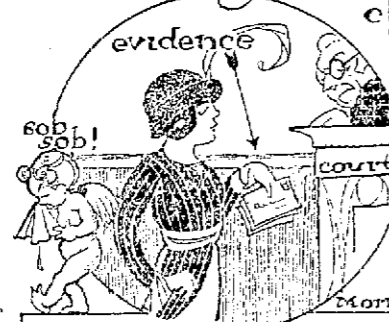

Charged with what Assistant U. S. Attorney Cary R. Alburn of Cleveland characterizes as one of the "wickedest blackmailing schemes" he has heard of, Mrs. Margaret A. Carter, fifty-one, of Elyria, Ohio, is in a Cleveland jail, awaiting the action of a grand jury in October. She is charged with having sent a threatening letter to Miss Lillian Huntington, Elyria heiress, out of $3,000. The letter in question, signed "Miss Rose," informed the heiress that if she did not pay $3,000 to the writer the latter would let loose such a scandal concerning Miss Huntington's supposed fiancé in Cleveland that it would be impossible for the heiress to marry him.

Mrs. Carter, who is on the verge of nervous prostration, admits that the handwriting of the letter received by Miss Huntington is similar to her own, but denies any guilt.

Being a Preachment On the Futility of Buying a Nondescript Motor Car

WHEN you buy a suit of clothes you buy a brand of clothing with which you are familiar—a brand the name of which has a firm hold on your confidence. The same with shoes, hats, etc. Why not with automobiles? The principle is just as broad as it is long! The manufacturers of the suit, hats, shoes or automobile have spent years of time and millions of money to turn out as near perfect a product, a product that would give you service and satisfaction and in addition to that they spent millions to familiarize you with the name of their product through advertising. The name with which they trade-mark their goods is your guide in buying. You know the name—you know it means good goods. You are willing to spend your money on the strength of a name. But if you are not familiar with the name you would hesitate.

OVERLAND is a name that everyone in America knows stands for the best in automobiles. The OVERLAND is perfectly standardized. Each part is like every other part, even to 1-1000th of an inch. Any time you wish you can secure, in a few days time at the most, any part you wish.

The Overland is the Greatest Motor Car Value in the World

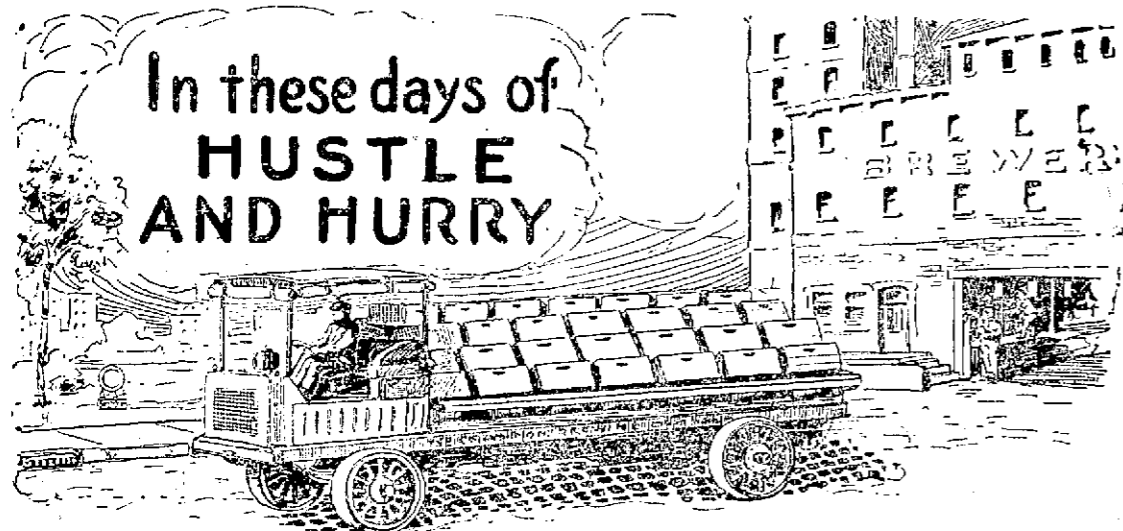

When you buy an OVERLAND you really get $1200 worth of motor car value for $975. This wonderful value is made possible by the most efficient automobile organization in the world. The OVERLAND plants are owned and controlled entirely by one man, John N. Willys. There are no outstanding debts or bond issues of any kind. The company is entirely free from debt. All parts of the car are made in the OVERLAND shops. Expense is cut at every angle through the use of automatic machinery. Millions have been spent to make the OVERLAND name familiar in all parts of the world. You know the name. You know what it stands for. Why not buy an OVERLAND and not take a chance?

Can You Afford to Buy a Car Without a Name? You Can't and Here's Why:

There have been more failures in the motor car world than in any other branch of manufacturing. The competition is fierce. And when a manufacturer is forced to sell his cars below what he should get for them it is a danger signal and anyone contemplating buying a car should heed the warning and refrain from purchasing, even if he can buy a "cheaper than list price" car. If the company who makes the car you buy are in straightened circumstances financially it is only a question of time until they are forced out of business and your car then won't be worth one-sixteenth of what you paid for it. The best made cars in the world are bound to need repairs at some time. If you cannot get a part that is needed, what good is your car? And that is just what will happen as surely as you buy one of these "Cheap John" cars that may be offered "at so much less than any other car on the market." There are some of these cars on the local market at the present time and the persons handling them will doubtless use their own time-worn arguments to persuade you to part with your money for one of their junk-heaps. Don't stand for it. Don't let any smooth-tongued salesman make you think you are getting something for nothing. Investigate the reputable makes of cars on the market first. Get full value for your money.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHEN UNSELFISHNESS IS NOT UNSELFISHNESS.

I DO BELIEVE Dorothy Sears is the most generous girl I ever knew," said the lady next door. "She spent the whole day helping one of her neighbors pack her trunk. You know she has a perfect genius for packing. She can get more into a trunk than any one I ever knew. She certainly is a thoroughly unselfish girl."

The Lady-who-always-knows-somehow and the lady next door were both visiting on my veranda when the lady next door delivered this eulogy.

While she was speaking I noticed that the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow beat low over her embroidery with that quizzical ghost of a smile which means that she doesn't exactly agree with the speaker's opinion.

After the lady next door had left us, I requested an explanation of the smile.

"Well," said the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow, "I didn't mean to say anything, but if you must know, it amused me to hear Dorothy called a thoroughly unselfish girl. I know her well, and she isn't what I call unselfish at all. What about her doing all that packing? Well, she has a passion for system; she packs beautifully, and she likes to pack, just as we all like to do things we do especially well; moreover she had nothing else to do yesterday. Besides, she likes to be thanked, and like all the rest of us she enjoys doing things for other people. What about her doing things for people when they are doing anything?"

"You don't seem awfully fond of Dorothy," I commented, as the lady paused in her remarks.

"Oh dear! I didn't mean to give that impression," said she, ruefully. "Dorothy is a nice girl and I like her very well. It's just the quality I hate—that pseudo unselfishness that will do anything on earth for anyone so long as it's something one doesn't particularly mind doing, and something shows enough to bring plenty of praise."

"Real unselfishness is a rare and beautiful quality and it somehow rouses me to see this cheap imitation lacerated."

"You know perfectly well," Dorothy had been invited to go on a motor trip, she wouldn't have stayed at home to help her friend pack. Or if it had been a question of taking care of children, which she hates to do, she would never have offered to help. You understand I don't blame her at all, she's just an ordinary pleasure-loving girl, but I don't think she deserves to be called very unselfish. Unselfishness is a far bigger thing. It means doing the things you don't like to do and doing them when you don't feel like it, and giving up things you really care for and wanting to make other people happy without caring to be praised for it."

The Lady broke off and laughed at her own seriousness. "I didn't mean to preach a sermon," she said, "only it's something I've thought about a great deal and I think most of us would be less self-satisfied if we realized when unselfishness is not unselfishness."

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Several days ago my girl friend and I had a date with two well-known young men of our town to meet them at a certain place and time. When the day arrived my friend and I were there at the exact time, but only met one fellow. What do you think of the other fellow that didn't show up?

(2) Is it proper form to leave a fellow put his arm around you when you go out with him for the first time?

(3) A young man took us out for a walk one night. Instead of going into the lighted road he went down the dark muddy road. We walked for a few minutes, but then wanted to turn back. To this he got angry, and took us as far as the lighted road and then left us to flit with some other girls visiting at his friends a few doors below him. What do you think of him?

TWO THINGS.

(1) If he did not "show up" and did not send a proper excuse, he is certainly lacking in good manners.

(2) A girl is pretty "easy" if she lets a fellow do it.

(3) You were quite right to leave this young man. He should have considered the convenience of the young ladies with him before he considered his own.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls of seventeen and nineteen planning to give a dance at our home. We would like to carry out the color scheme of pink and green. We would appreciate very much if you would suggest some decoration for the inside as the house on the outside is quite pretty. Also suggest the kind of music.

ANNIOUS.

Pink and green decorations would be very pretty. You will have pink flowers, of course, and a lot of ferns and trailing southern amaranth. If you can get palms to bank on the corners, they would make a good effect. Big bows of pink tulle, with streamers, would be pretty among the greenery.

Have your refreshments on the pink and green order as much as possible—green and red pimiento sandwiches, pink iced cakes, pistachio (green) ice cream, etc., and a pink fruit punch.

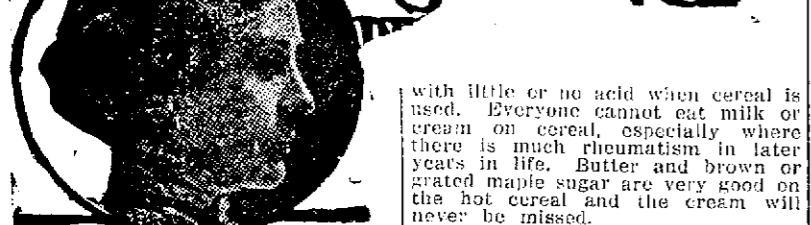

For the music you might employ a small orchestra hidden among the flowers and greenery at one end of the dancing floor. Piano music, or even a graphophone with proper records, will also be suitable.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a boy for over a year and think lots of him, and he says I am the only girl he cares for, but one of his old sweethearts is visiting her sister in a town close by and he says he is going to call on her. I don't want him to and told him plainly that I didn't like it. He doesn't want me to have anything to do with any of my old boy friends. Do you think I ought to say anything to him about going? Do you think he cares for me, or for the other girl?

JACKIE.

Don't be jealous, dearies. He has a perfect right to visit his old friend and it would be discourteous of him not to visit her. He probably thinks just as much of you, but he will think less of you if you make a fuss about another girl.

LONG LIFE IN JUDICIOUS DIET.

"To eat or not to eat" seems to be the question when it comes to breakfasts. It is only a very small number, however, who go entirely without breakfast, and not the masses by any means who are carefully planning the breakfast for father at his work, mother, hers, and the children in school so that each one is fully fed or satisfied for five or six hours at least.

Brillat Savarin, who lived and wrote the first half of the eighteenth century in his native town in France, had a very good knowledge of the human race and when he wrote on "The Love of Good Living," he shows us very clearly that right foods are based upon an intellectual and moral quality as well, almost deserving to rank as a virtue, opposing excess, developing discrimination and promoting physical health.

Napoleon's worst defects were due to his injudicious diet. Such persons may usually be known later in life by their appearance, or their business failures. Not entirely, but we know much of it is true.

In the first place, there has been too heavy food to eat and a burden for the mother who has had to rise early to prepare almost a dinner of meat, potatoes, and hot cakes for breakfast, which has helped to create a nation of dyspeptics.

Water is about the first thing we should desire and demand in the morning, both inside and out; then a good all-wheat cereal now and later oatmeal, melons, grapes, pears or peaches (the latter two fresh and baked) for fruits, using the ones with little or no acid when cereal is used. Everyone cannot eat milk or cream on cereal, especially where there is much rheumatism in later years in life. Butter and brown or grated maple sugar are very good on the hot cereal and the cream will never be missed.

I know just exactly how queerly people look at one when they say "No coffee." The answer nine times out of ten is, "I can't give up coffee." The most difficult part is really making up one's mind not to drink something which is only a beverage and containing only a food value, just because we have acquired a taste for it.

There is where we find such men as Brillat Savarin, who was first mayor of his home town and the last third of his life judge in Paris of the highest national court, worth following on all he wrote on foods. His love for it never led him to indulge in any of those which did not continually build both the physical and mental side of his life.

This month is a good time with the changing of season to cooler days for varying the breakfast. The tendency is to quickly get back into the habit of eating the heavier foods. Don't do it. Only add enough to give sufficient extra warmth to the body and keep the machinery clean and well oiled, the tissues and muscles well built, plenty of bare material for children and blood material for all and illness will have no place in such families.

Material—Healthful. One cup: boiling water, three cups; salt, one teaspoonful; apples, six; sugar, one-half cup.

Tensils—Apple corer, baking pan, sauce pan.

Directions—Stir the wheat into the boiling water and salt; cook five minutes and then pour into and over covered apples; season with bits of butter, cinnamon and mix the sugar with a moderate oven until the apples are tender. These may be done the day before and reheated for breakfast.

Whole Wheat Pop-Overs.

Material—Whole wheat flour, one-half pint; milk, one-half pint; salt, one-fourth teaspoonful; eggs, two.

Utensils—One pop-over pan; one puree sieve; two bowls, one wooden spoon, one brush, one measuring cup.

Directions—Beat the eggs without separating until well mixed and light. Add milk to eggs. Into another bowl put the flour, add salt and pour into it, beating all the while milk and flour gradually together. Strain this batter through a sieve. Have well-heated and buttered iron germ or pop-over pans. Fill two-thirds full with this batter and bake in a moderate oven forty to fifty minutes, or until perfectly light, as they will surely fall if not perfectly done. It is very important to heat the pop-over pans, as the desired lightness must be secured by steady heat from the bottom at the very beginning of baking.

HORDES of tiny totters are working in our service night and day to keep the world with life-stuff.

CARE IN CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The eating utensils used by a patient, or indeed anything else which he uses or handles during sickness, may become a menace, as they are easily contaminated with infectious material.

It goes without saying that a diphtheria patient who has the bacilli in his mouth, will contaminate spoons, forks and cups which he uses, with the bacteria which are working in his throat. This is true of all contagious diseases, to a less extent, consequently too much care cannot be taken of everything that the patient handles, and all should be regarded with suspicion and treated accordingly.

Points to insist upon: Allow no one to use or handle any of the eating utensils which the patient has had during his illness.

After his recovery, put them in boiling water and allow them to stand several minutes or an hour. Boiling water, not simply hot water, will sterilize utensils if they are allowed to boil five or six minutes.

The best protection against contagion is robust health. One who is strong and vigorous is much less liable to yield to disease than one less robust. Wholesome food, exercise and fresh air are essentials in combating disease.

An active body is far less liable to disease than an inactive one that has little outdoor exercise.

The need of fresh air, day and night, is one of the most important factors in maintaining health. The belief that night air is dangerous is responsible for much ill health. Night air is all we have to breathe at night. Our sleeping rooms should be well aired each day, and a free circulation of pure fresh air should be provided in even the coldest weather.

We must bear in mind that contagious diseases are real things, and cannot be dealt with as imaginary ills. Contagious diseases are due to distinct living beings, which are transported from one to another, and live like parasites upon a patient. This knowledge will help us to guard ourselves and our loved ones from the spread of contagion.

Municipal Affairs
Of Vital Interest

HALF MILLION INVESTED
IN PARKS OF MADISON

It has cost Madison nearly a half million dollars to be known as "the most beautiful city in the United States," says the Madison State Journal in a practical article of value to all cities of the state.

According to the report of the Park and Pleasure Drive association for 1913, private and municipal appropriations for the past twenty-one years have totaled $490,204.16. That citizens of Madison and the vicinity are liberal toward park and pleasure improvements is shown by the fact that private contributions alone since 1892 have totaled $302,399.91 while the city has appropriated for that length of time the sum of $187,804.25, or an average of $9,391 per year. Private contributions have averaged $14,399 per year.

Madison's parks, of which Tenney, Vilas, Orton, Monona and Brittingham are the largest, have a total acreage of 270 acres. This does not include the capitol park, which is state property and which is cared for by the state employees. This park contains an area of about fourteen acres.

More than one-third of the total private subscriptions have come from five persons alone. They are Colonel and Mrs. William F. Vilas, Thomas J. Brittingham, George Burrows, D. K. Tenny and A. H. Hollister, who together have contributed $121,332 to the association.

PURCHASE FORTY ACRES
FOR WATER POWER SITE

Spooner, Wis.—To provide cheap light and power for its industries the city has bought forty acres of land nine miles away, on the Namekagon river, for a water power site. Here is one of the best remaining sources of power that are under-developed in Wisconsin, and the purpose of the city officials is to supply the power for the plant at cost to manufacturers that locate in Spooner. According to one estimate the charge may be as low as 1 cent a kilowatt. The entire enterprise will be handled as a city affair.

Municipal ownership already has a strong hold in Spooner. The local electric light plant is driven by water from the Yellow river, which flows through the city, and this is owned by the city.

The supply of water for domestic purposes comes from a city-owned artesian well. Last of all, the city possesses a small opera house of its own.

GREEN BAY HEALTH OFFICER
ISSUES A HEALTH BOOKLET

(Green Bay Gazette.)

Dr. H. P. Rhoads, commissioner of health, has just issued a booklet containing rules to be observed in the care and management of infants during the summer. A second pamphlet is issued, entitled "Suggestions to Mothers."

Both booklets are published by the Green Bay department of health and issued for the purpose of cutting down the annual amount of sickness during the summer months among the infants. The booklets contain valuable information and the rules contained in the books should be lived up to.

Up to the present time the book is published in English only, but as the need is demonstrated it will be issued in other languages.

AUTOMOBILE FIRE TRUCK
ORDERED BY PARABOO

At the meeting of the city council last evening it was decided to invest in an auto fire truck, and after considering several propositions it was decided to take the home product, the Wisconsin truck built by L. P. Heflin. The truck will be a standard model A chassis, with a 60-horse motor of the Waukesha type. The cylinders are to be six inches. The car will be the twin-chain drive with dual tires on the rear wheels and single in front, geared to 25 to 30 miles an hour. The car will be equipped with a 50-gallon chemical tank, two or three ladders, hose basket and the usual tools for fighting fire. There will also be sufficient room for the firemen. It will be ample for the ordinary fire.—Republic.

On Trial in Sheboygan.
The Central Fire department will have an addition for a few days next week in the shape of a Clintonville four-wheel-drive auto truck demonstrating its power. The two-ton truck will be loaded with 3,500 feet of fire hose and demonstrations of its power will be given. In case of fire, the truck will make the run.

MAY HIRE MECHANIC
TO ATTEND MACHINES

(Racine Journal News.)
The proposition of hiring a competent mechanic to take care of the auto fire engines, the city ambulance and police patrol, and other auto vehicles owned by the city, was brought to the common council by Mayor W. S. Goodland. The matter was referred to the fire, water and police commission.

MINNEAPOLIS HAS RIGHT TO FIX RATE FOR GAS

Minneapolis has the right to regulate gas rates.
This was the ruling of Judge J. W. Moynaux in a court order denying the injunction sought by the Minneapolis Gas Light company against the publication of the ordinance fixing the price of gas at 70 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

NEW STREET LIGHTING SYSTEM FOR HARVARD

The city of Harvard has closed a contract with the electric lighting company of that city for the installing of 109 75-watt tungsten lamps and sixteen clusters of three 75-watt tungstens. This will place a light on nearly every street corner in that city and will do away with the old-time system of overhead arcs.

WILL PROVIDE MENOMONIE WITH MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

Menomonie, Wis.—Menomonie is to have a municipal hospital. At a mass meeting of citizens it was unanimously voted to construct a hospital, and the city council has agreed, if a modern hospital, adequate for the needs of the community, is constructed and equipped by popular subscription, and then turned over to the city, the city will maintain it for a period of at least five years, and if in that time it has proven a success it will be maintained and managed by the city indefinitely. Funds are now being raised for a building to cost about $15,000.

Will Soon Get Current.
The work of placing the poles for the new electric service is practically completed, and the wiring is now under-way, so that we may expect to secure the Kibbourn power within a few weeks at the most.—Port Atkinson Democrat.

DULUTH WILL PURCHASE
ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT

(Superior Telegram.)

At a meeting of the Duluth city commission held yesterday, a resolution was introduced by Thomas A. Hirt, commissioner of public utilities, providing that the city of Duluth at once proceed to acquire the plant of the Duluth-Edison Electric company. The resolution was passed by unanimous vote.

The resolution provides that in the event a price cannot be agreed upon proceedings be commenced in the court to condemn the property.

Action to acquire the plant is commenced under a new law enacted by the recent Minnesota legislature giving the cities of over 50,000 population the right to acquire public utilities.

PIONEER MERCHANT
OF CLINTON DIES

W. Irving Hartshorn Highly Esteemed Resident, Called by Death—Funeral Held Friday.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Clinton, Sept. 6.—Every business house in Clinton was closed between one-thirty and three o'clock Friday afternoon, out of respect to the late W. Irving Hartshorn, pioneer merchant who passed away on Wednesday. The funeral services yesterday were conducted by the Reverend L. L. Cory, pastor of the Congregational church.

In passing of Mr. Hartshorn removed a highly respected citizen who was beloved, honored and trusted by all who enjoyed his acquaintance. He was a kind and sympathetic man, a lover of nature and of children, and endowed with fine character qualities.

He was born in the state of Vermont, eighty-one years ago. He came west while a young man and located at Clinton corners in the general merchandise business. He removed to Clinton when the railroads were built. He had been engaged in business here for over fifty years.

Besides his wife he leaves two daughters, Mrs. H. A. Moehlenpach and Miss Mabel Hartshorn, both of Clinton, and three grandchildren.

Mr. Hartshorn possessed a fine tenor voice and was a great lover of music. He has composed a number of songs of recognized quality and some of his anthems have earned him a reputation as a composer. They are to be found in some of the popular hymn books of the time.

During the war Mr. Hartshorn was a staunch Unionist and his store was daily meeting place of loyal friends and neighbors who discussed the conditions of those strenuous times.

Miss Harriet Smith left Thursday evening for Dickens, N. D., to teach the coming season.

John Westphal Sr., of Sharon, was here yesterday on business.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 7th

THE "COOK"

BY WILL SEAT.

It was when the economy fever struck the engineering department of the J. C. R. R. that Jim Andrews lost his footing and made a wild grab to hang on to his natural self, but it seemed to slip away from him as it always does when the layoff comes.

The chief clerk went from table to table pausing only long enough to toss down a neat little envelope in front of some individual who was too busy to pay immediate attention to it.

One by one they picked them up, tore off the ends and glanced at the contents. Some uttered mild exclamations of surprise, others gave free vent to their feelings, still others said never a word, but their looks spoke volumes.

Jim was one of the latter. His square jaw dropped as he picked up the letter and rose from his chair. There was no mistaking the curt and business-like phrase:

"Your services are no longer required after the 25th inst."

It spoke little, but meant lots. He read it again and again, then turned to join the uproar.

Excitement ran high, it was an unheard of innovation. Work was booming instead of falling off; and they all as one man, stormed the chief's desk with the inquiry as to the meaning, only to be met with:

"I'm sorry, fellows, but those are the orders, and I suppose the economy racket is behind it."

Still they were not satisfied, but orders were orders and they separated, each man to his own table.

Jim tried to work, it seemed, a battle where it had always seemed a pleasure, the very figures he wrote seemed to jump up before him and cry, "you're fired."

He threw down his pen in disgust, rose from his chair, and stuffing his hands in his pockets he shuffled aimlessly toward the outer office. He didn't have any business out there, but he wanted to go somewhere, and not caring where, he poked along out.

There was no one in the office except a girl who sat at a typewriter over by the window. Jim had seen her occasionally as he had been through the office to and from work.

He stood still in the doorway looking at her, but she did not turn around so Jim could see her face. On the desk beside her lay an unopened envelope of the kind that was the cause of Jim's present troubles.

She paid no attention to it, but kept on typewriting. As the click of the machine ceased Jim almost wanted to go over and snatch the little envelope from the desk and destroy it; but he didn't make a move.

After reading the letters she had written, she placed them on the table, and picking up the envelope she leaned back in her chair to read the contents.

Jim could almost hear her heart stop beating as she gave a little start and turned abruptly toward him.

"Oh," she exclaimed, rather embarrassed, "I didn't know there was any one in here. You almost frightened me."

"Are you fired, too?" was Jim's only comment.

She hesitated a moment, glanced at the letter, and said slowly:

"I suppose so."

"When do you go?" Jim asked.

"The 25th, the letter says."

"Same here," he answered as he turned and started back into the drafting room.

She looked after him as he disappeared around the corner, somewhat surprised.

The next two weeks were years to Jim. He passed his time evenings and Saturday afternoons going the rounds of the places he knew in search of a job. With the whole room full of men it was the same story, "nothing doing."

He met the girl every morning and evening as he went to and from the office. He noticed a sort of tired look on her pretty face as she tried bravely to smile when she met him.

At last the fatal 25th came, and Jim, with some dozen other sullen individuals, left the office that night to face the job hunter's lot.

As he left the office and started down the corridor, the girl came out and joined him. He was in no mood for conversation. He felt and looked ugly.

She had a cheery good evening for him, but it didn't have its usual effect on him.

They entered the elevator and were soon outside the building, neither seemed to know just which way to turn.

It was Jim who broke the silence with that question which had been ringing in his ears for two weeks.

"Got anything to do?"

"Not yet," she replied, looking up at him. "Have you?"

"No. I'm in the same box as the rest of the bunch."

"I should think you engineers could get positions enough, but with us girls it's different, there are so many to do the drudgery in the of-

at home?"

"In a home that costs three per, and you can't use the gas after 11 o'clock," he retorted dryly. "I suppose I ought to be glad I can use it that late," he added.

"No there's no use of you looking so ugly about it," said the girl, pointing a little gloved finger at him.

"And just to get even with you I'm going to invite you out to the house for supper. Will you come?"

He took the girl by the arm and of surprise as the girl opened the door and he beheld a most "exquisite," as he expressed it, little two-room home.

An elderly woman rose from her seat by the window and came forward to meet him.

"Mother, this is Mr. ——" she was confused for a moment till Jim came forward with his name.

"Andrews."

"Really, I had quite forgotten your name," she said rather guiltily; but room, his eye rested for a moment on the piano in the corner. An idea flashed through his mind—what if—no, that was out of the question, and perhaps —

"Does your daughter play the piano?" asked Jim, suddenly remembering that he was a guest.

"Yes, a great deal; and I don't know what we would do to amuse ourselves if it were not for the piano; Mazie is a fine player, too."

It was hard for him to remember when he had had such a homelike meal. It had its effect on him, and he made quite an after-dinner entertainer as they sat about the table and Jim told stories of his travels and career.

He walked across the city to his own boarding house. The damp night air had its usual depressing effect on his spirits, and when he reached his room he opened wide the window and sat down on the bed to think.

No use to deny it; she was the only girl. But why on earth couldn't he have met her before, when his prospects had been good for success?

He fell to wondering where his next job was coming from, he even tried to devise a means to help the girl; he knew she needed it. He turned in, but it was some time before he went to sleep.

Contrary to his usual inclinations he was out of bed early the next morning, and after breakfast there seemed nothing to do but walk the streets. He realized now as never before what it was that filled the streets with loafers, who could never seem to offer any good excuse for being there.

He tramped that day, but without success, and he almost gave up that night.

The next day he went out to a neighboring town where his cousin was just starting a moving picture theater. He could at least take tickets or play the usher for the present; anything was better than loafing.

His cousin greeted him with:

"You are just the man I am looking for, Jim."

"Glad somebody wants to see me come around. You don't want a good usher or a general utility man, do you?" Jim inquired.

"Usher" nothing; I want a good operator and a piano player, that's what's troubling me now."

"That's us," Jim assented.

"What? Who is us?"

"Er—well—," Jim stammered, "I know a dandy piano player for you, and I can turn the crank myself."

"Interested in her?" asked his cousin.

"I will be when I get a job, but for the present I can only say a good word for her playing."

"If that's the case, you bring her out here tomorrow afternoon. As for you, you're on at $25 per until the engineering is good again. Is it a go?"

When he reached the girl's home he didn't even stop to ask her if she had got a position; but read her story from her tired little face as she greeted him at the door.

He told her the news and his cousin's offer. She hesitated at first, but Jim's enthusiasm won her, and she promised to be ready the next day.

He wondered what the fellows would say to see a civil engineer turn moving picture operator, but he counted himself lucky to get that until business was good again. And perhaps she —

Jim proved a good operator; and the girl even surprised herself with her "show talent," as she called it.

Good luck favored Jim, and he was given a position as chief draftsman with a good company, where his prospects were better than ever before.

Jim's time had come. That night, as he was going to leave, he went out of the booth and down the aisle to the orchestra pit where the girl was arranging her music for the next day. Finally she turned around to walk up the aisle.

"O, Jim, I've heard the news! Isn't it great to think you are going back where you belong? Let me congratulate you," as she held out a little hand toward him.

"Good," said Jim, taking the outstretched hand in his, "but first let me congratulate you."

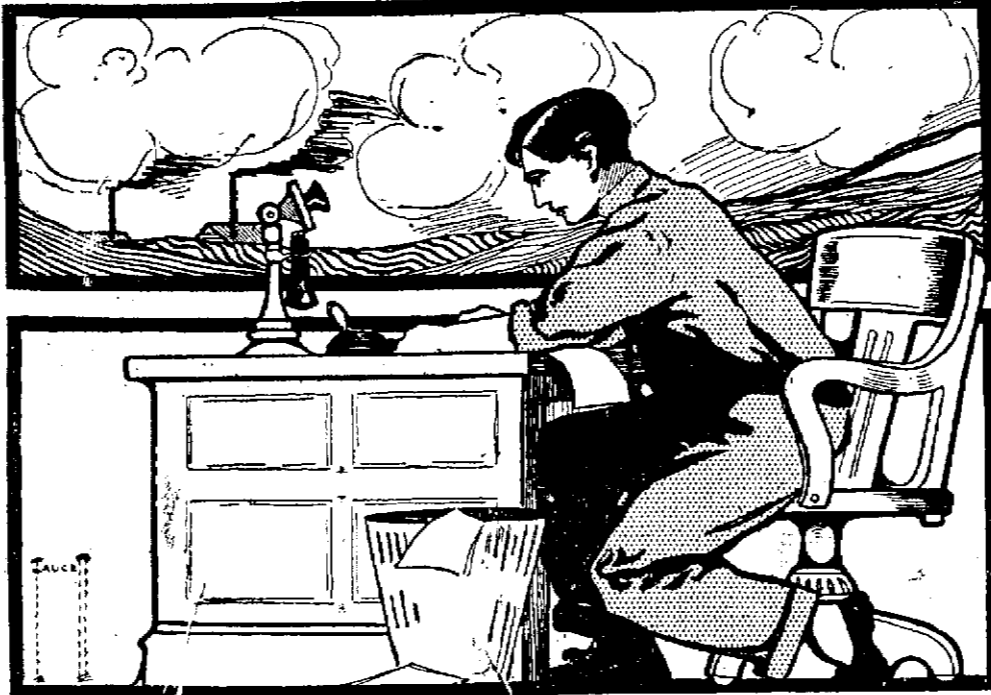

"On what?" questioned the girl, looking up at him.

"On the fact that to be a good engineer requires music in the house."

"Jim Andrews, what are you talking about?"

"Just this," as he stepped forward and gathered the little figure in his arms, bent over and kissed the little brown head.

"You've got to furnish the music for this engineer."

JIM READ IT AGAIN AND AGAIN.

started down the street. As they walked they chatted and Jim learned that she and her mother had moved to the city soon after her father's death and had kept house together ever since, the girl earning her living by office work for various firms about the city.

As they entered the hallway Jim was struck by the quietness of the place; and after climbing three flights of stairs, in spite of his puffing, was able to utter an exclamation

Jim surmised that she had never known it.

"And are you one of the engineers at the office?" questioned the mother, still looking at him.

"Used to be, would express it better," said Jim.

"I've been worried to death for fear Mazie won't get another position," she continued, drawing a chair toward the window for Jim and resuming her own.

Jim was still looking about the room, his eye rested for a moment on the piano in the corner. An idea flashed through his mind—what if—

TWENTY-THREE DEAD, FORTY INJURED, TOLL OF BLUNDERING RAILROAD'S LATEST WRECK

New Haven Railroad's latest wreck.

The picture shows some of the ruin wrought by the latest wreck on the New Haven railroad, near New Haven, Conn., on Tuesday. The engine of the White Mountain express is seen in the middle of the picture. It crashed through the two rear Pullman cars of the Bar Harbor express, both of wood, splitting them in two, and tossing their wreckage and three score mangled human beings on either side of the track. At least twenty-three are dead.

No other railway in the United States, mileage considered, has had anything like the number of fatal wrecks that this road has had in the last two years. The last wreck before Tuesday's was on June 12, at Stamford, Conn. Five passengers were killed and twenty injured. The interstate commerce commission is making an investigation.

Joseph and David Kelly of Chicago, visited the first of the week at the F. W. Campion home.

Clifford Hoyt of Madison, spent Monday at the home of his mother, Mrs. James Hoyt.

There will be no preaching services at the M. E. church next Sunday, as the district superintendent, Rev. E. C. Dixon has been unable to find a minister to supply the pulpit for the present.

RICHMOND

Richmond, Sept. 6.—Many from here are attending the Jefferson fair this week.

G. W. Benner of Darien, was a Wednesday caller.

The L. A. S. met with Mrs. W. H. Calkins Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sutherland welcomed a babe to their home recently.

John Huntington, of Delavan, was a business caller Thursday.

Will Wade's team which were hitched to a manure spreader became frightened and ran away Wednesday.

Mr. Wade and little child were thrown to the ground the latter escaping without any injury, while the former was badly injured.

Ray Hulce is home from Champaign, Ill., for a short vacation.

Mrs. Thomas Gavaney returned on Wednesday, from a two weeks' automobile trip in Illinois and Iowa. There were seven in the party and they covered a distance of 900 miles. They attended the dedication of the big dam, which is situated at the foot of the Des Moines rapids, between the high bluffs of Hamilton, Ill., and Keokuk, Iowa. The dam is nearly a mile in length and 12 feet wide at its base and is of solid concrete.

Wallpapers.

Paper for screens and partitions of rooms was common in China as early as the fourth century. In the sixteenth century the use of wallpaper became fashionable in Holland, and soon afterwards it was commonly seen in English houses. Originally Chinese papers were printed from blocks, handpainted, or stamped, the designs being exquisite. Modern printing and stamping machines made the manufacture of continuous rolls of wallpaper possible.

Interruptions at Meals.

Never disturb a man when he is eating. Not only does it irritate him, but it actually interrupts his digestion. No man who knows anything about dogs will ever disturb an animal at his meal. To call away a dog when he is gnawing a bone is cruel as well as dangerous. A cat that is worrying a mouse will scratch and bite if interrupted.

THE GREAT MISTAKE.

The man who wants all the best of every bargain cheats himself of future opportunities.

WATER TUG OF WAR THE NEWEST SPORT FOR BATHERS

The latest water sport is the tug of war, it is providing daily amusement for hundreds at bathing beaches. The "tuggers" chose sides, the two leaders naming members selected for the separate teams. The sides line up in the water almost waist deep. The leaders lock hands. Every one in each line puts his or her arms around him or her in front. Every one plants feet deep in the sand and pulls backward, that reformer first wins the bout.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, September 6, 1873.—Milton Raided: Burglars made a raid in the vicinity of Milton last night. The residence of Rev. J. C. Coggeshall. The burglars took out a glass window and trying to gain entrance to the house knocked down a bird cage and it is supposed that the noise frightened them away. Miss Coggeshall was awakened by the noise and on looking out the window saw the thief make his getaway through the woods nearby. She says he was a negro or a whiteman with a mask hiding his face. The houses of F. Buten, E. Brown, J. T. Davis, L. Allen and A. A. Brown were also entered on the same night. At the Allen residence they gained entrance through the front door and were discovered by Mr. Allen's daughter who saw a man kneeling on the bed. She thought it was her brother and called to him by his name. He laid down by the side of little Miss Allen, who felt of his face and feeling his whiskers knew that it was not her brother and screamed to her parents. The man got up and threatened to kill her if she did not keep still but she cluded him and ran to her parents' room. The burglar then jumped out the window and escaped. It was thought that the thief was after a new suit of clothes that was hanging in the bed. The only booty taken by the thieves was 25 cents taken out of the pockets of the hired man. It is high time that this thing was played out.

The common council met last night as board of health with Mayor Sutherland presiding with all aldermen present. Numerous business matters were given careful attention.

The architectural design so long in process of construction in the Court house park has been completed and the structure rises in proud defiance of its neighbors, a monument to stubborn determination of half a dozen men, who when their heads silvered with the frost of age and proudly exclaim that they were the builders of it.

A Colonial House—By John Henry Newson.

Home of Character No. 203

This design is of colonial type and makes a most attractive home. The exterior is carried out in wide siding and should preferably be all white with green shingle roof and red brick chimney.

The plan is of the usual center hall type and considerable saving is effected by the enclosed stairway, which permits a small den or library at the rear of the hall. The living room occupies one entire side of the house, is well lighted and with the porch at the side makes a most attractive room. The dining room and kitchen occupy the other side, and the kitchen contains ample space for complete kitchen equipment and cupboard. The second floor contains four large bedrooms and bath, with ample closets off of each room and a linen closet. Two additional rooms can be placed in the attic if desired. Basement under the entire house. This design 36x28 feet can be built under ordinary conditions for about $4000.

If you think of building, don't hesitate to consult Mr. John Henry Newson free.

By special arrangement Mr. Newson is ready to answer any inquiry from any reader of The Gazette concerning any design appearing on this page. Simply give the number of the design in writing and address your letter to "Homes of Character Department" The Gazette and Mr. Newson will personally answer your inquiries.
